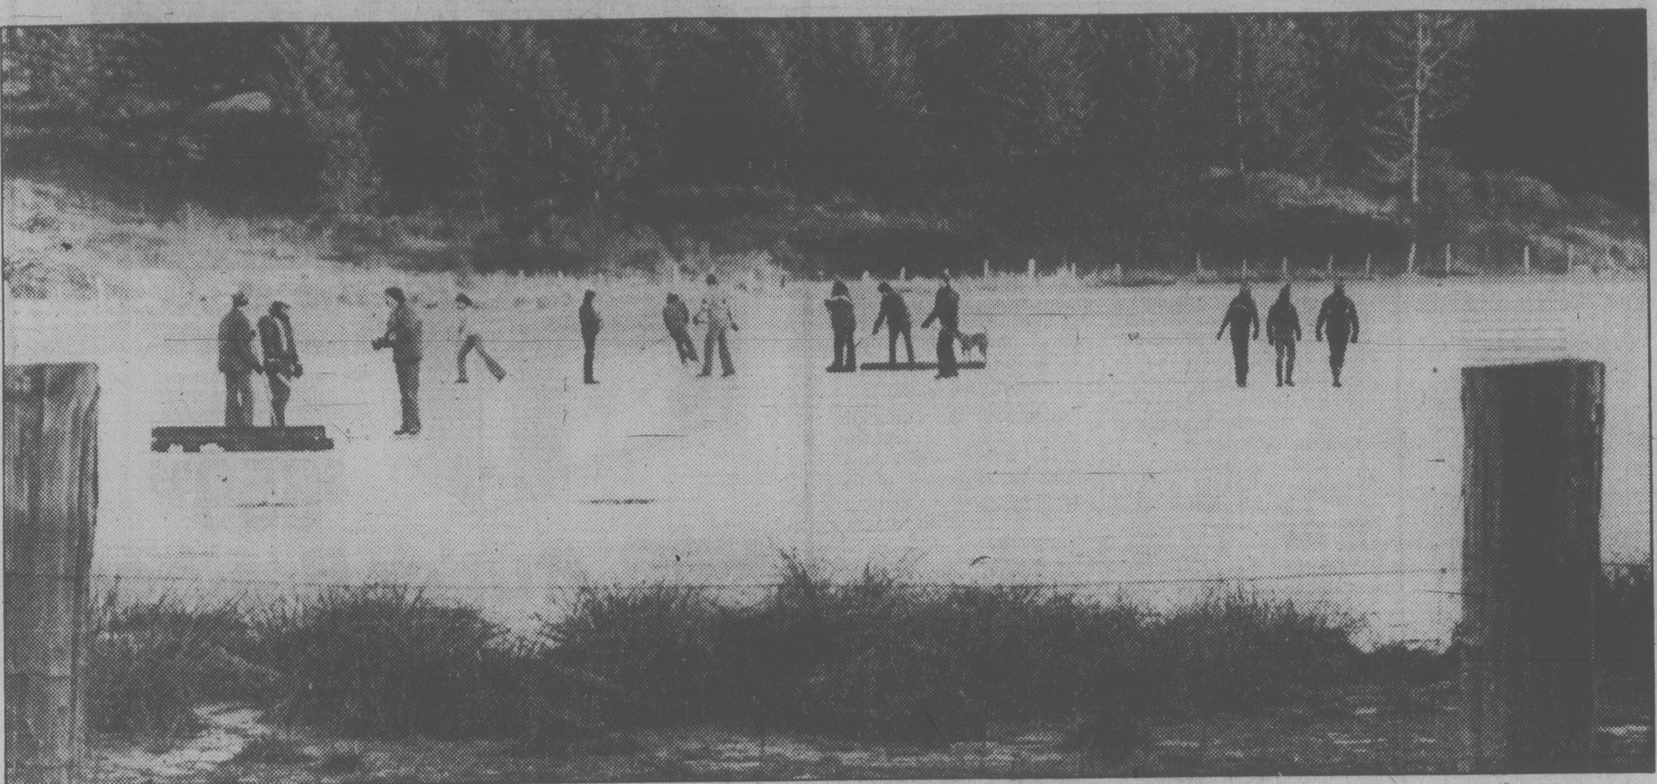
Carter boosts arms budget



IT'S WINTER AGAIN as sub-freezing temperatures of last week produced sheets of ice all over capital region. These young skaters Sunday took advantage of flooded fields, produced by torrential rains in December, off Interurban Road in Saanich. Weatherman said it got down to —5 Celsius Sunday and the forecast is for more Arctic weather, although there will be increasing cloud cover that could warm the air slightly but also could bring more snow by Thursday. A word of warning: Skaters should check with police departments to make sure ice surfaces have been declared safe before attempting to glide across them. Many favorite outdoor skating areas where water depth is more than a few inches are still considered hazardous. (John McKay photo).

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today sent the U.S. Congress a 1981 budget totalling $616 billion that proposes major new spending for the military, while putting a partial lid on domestic spending.

Carter called it a "prudent and responsible" budget that "will prepare America for the new decade."

The budget claims to represent a reordering of the administration's priorities caused by armed Soviet intervention in Afghanistan and terrorism in Iran. But almost all the military increase was pledged several years ago to NATO allies, and the rest was announced last year to win Senate votes for ratification of the SALT II treaty.

"The uncertain and sometimes hostile world we live in requires that we continue to rebuild our defence forces," the president said in his budget message to Congress. "I cannot ignore the major increases in Soviet military spending that have taken place inexorably over the past 20 years."

The administration predicted a "mild recession" during the first six months of this year. Forecasting continued double-digit inflation, Carter said he is restraining domestic spending for 1981.

He proposed defence outlays of $142.7 billion, a 3.3-per-cent increase over 1980, which includes funds for a rapid deployment force for emergency dispatch to crisis areas like the Persian Gulf, as well as increased spending for NATO forces, the new MX ballistic missile, the bomber-launched Cruise missile and a new super-tank.

There was also $10 million for the selective service system to begin registering young Americans for a possible military draft.

Though combatting inflation is a high priority, Carter abandoned his 1976 campaign pledge to balance the budget. With projected revenues of $600 billion falling short of outlays, there is a deficit of $16 billion. The 1980 deficit is projected at $40 billion.

Energy projects also got a big boost from the Carter budget. Outlays for the energy department would increase $1 billion to $8.7 billion to expand use of coal.

The budget, for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, must be approved by Congress, which usually makes significant changes. While spending is up $52 billion over projected 1980 outlays, the administration said $37 billion of that is required by existing law, such as cost-of-living increases in social security benefits.

West to lead growth

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 80 per cent of all economic growth this year will come from the Western provinces while Ontario and Quebec will contribute less than 10 per cent, the Conference Board in Canada predicted today.

After three years of decline, construction in British Columbia will return to a high level of activity in 1980 aided by the provincial government's mortgage interest subsidy program and major investments in non-residential building by mining and forestry companies.

Business in the service industry sector will also pick-up.

But the board also said mining and forestry sector output is expected to decline as poor housing markets in the United States limit provincial lumber exports.

"Last decade's tendency for the Canadian West to out-perform the nation as a whole will be carried forward into 1980, emphasized by a poor performance predicted for manufacturing industries," said the board's quarterly provincial forecast.

The independant research institute said production of manufactured goods is expected to decline by nearly three per cent nationwide and by almost four per cent in Ontario.

Its report said the motor vehicle and parts industries will be most affected by the slowdown but other producers of consumer goods will not escape unscathed.

Forestry, construction and the public administration sectors will also decline and over-all growth in Ontario will be restricted to only two-tenths of one per cent.

Clark threatens to cut off Olympic athletes' funding

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Clark has threatened to halt funding of Canadian athletes who want to go to the Moscow Olympics unless Soviet troops are out of Afghanistan in less than one month.

The funding withdrawal would be part of a Games boycott to force the Soviet army out of Afghanistan by Feb. 20, Clark said Saturday.

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, rejected Clark's idea. Broadbent said Sunday although he supported the idea of changing the site of the Games, he would not back a boycott.

Clark met officials of the Canadian Olympic Association in his Ottawa residence and emerged to announce his desire for the boycott unless the Soviet Union complies with the deadline.

The prime minister asked the association officials to take his position to a meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Lake Placid, N.Y., on Feb. 9.

Clark said he would first ask Canadian athletes to support a boycott, but unless the Soviet troops retreat the Canadian government will withdraw aid to competitors seeking to go to the Moscow Games.

Although reaction from some Canadian Olympic contenders was quick and critical, Liberal Leader Pierre Trudeau, who had earlier spoken against a Games boycott, reserved comment on Clark's announcement.

A Trudeau aide said Sunday the Liberal leader would include his position on the proposed boycott in a major campaign speech on foreign policy, likely to be delivered this week.

Athletes in British Columbia said the Clark boycott would not affect the Russians or the situation in Afghanistan.

"It really won't do that much unless maybe 80 per cent of the countries do it," said hammer thrower Scott Nielson of New Westminster. "If we stay away no one else is going to be hurt."

Meanwhile, closer to the Afghanistan crisis, six allied Afghan rebel leaders made a dramatic appearance before an emergency meeting of Islamic nations today to appeal for assistance in their bitter conflict against the Soviet invasion force.

The 36-nation conference meeting in Islamabad, Pakistan, also was expected to move within hours to expel the Kabul government from the 42-nation Islamic Conference organization.

Gold falling

LONDON (AP) — Gold prices were sharply lower again today, falling to $624 U.S. — about $726 Canadian — at the afternoon fix in London, down from $665.50 U.S. at the close Friday. The morning fix price in London was $629.

McKinnon lays plans for crisis

By AL FORREST

Canada has developed a contingency plan to add 16,000 more troops to its armed forces if they are needed to deal with the Afghanistan crisis, Defence Minister Allan McKinnon said here today.

He said Canada would be able to put a third infantry batallion in West Germany where it could go to the Middle East, if necessary, under NATO or UN command.

McKinnon said Prime Minister Clark directed him to prepare a study on the maximum force Canada can put under arms at this time.

"The study is complete," McKinnon said in an interview. "While some of the material is classified it includes an assessment that we could increase our forces in five figures, for a total of around 95,000."

The present Canadian strength is just under 79,000.

McKinnon said it would not be practical to try to get as many as 100,000 into the forces, even in an emergency, at this time because there would not be enough guns and uniforms for them.

He said Canadian forces would only go into the Middle East under united command through the UN or NATO.

"I'm sure we would go if called upon."

Canada had planned to increase its forces by 4,000 over the next four years, before the Afghanistan crisis arose. This schedule will be continued and is separate from the contingency plan.

McKinnon said all armed

Teens die when car hits pole

Two Victoria teenagers were killed and a third injured early Sunday when their car crashed into a B.C. Hydro pole in the 900-block on Goldstream Avenue.

Dead are Patrick David Rix, 19, of 2799 Wenger, and Mary Anne Leslie Hodge, 16, of 1111 Hillside.

California quaking

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Scientists are warning that northern Californians can expect more earthquakes following nine tremors in the last four days.

"Earthquake sequences of this type are relatively common," said Dr. Robert Uhrhammer, a researcher at the University of California Seismographic Station in Berkeley. "We think the sequence will continue for several days or possibly weeks.

"The others will probably be smaller and further apart in time."

The latest tremor rattled the Livermore Valley 50 kilometres east of San Francisco — site of Thursday's big earthquake — at 2:58 a.m. Sunday.

Fake doctor exposed, kills himself

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man known to residents of Alert Bay for the last two months as Dr. Robert Rifleman was found dead of self-inflicted wounds Sunday at the RCMP lockup in Port Hardy on northeastern Vancouver Island.

RCMP Constable Paul Fox identified the man as Roberto Enrique Trujillo, 41, who was arrested Friday and charged with impersonating Dr. Robert Rifleman, a general practitioner now living in Wisconsin.

Trujillo was being held in the Port Hardy lockup until a court appearance Tuesday. He was also under investigation under the federal Immigration Act, RCMP said.

Events that led to Trujillo's arrest Friday began several weeks ago when a doctor and nurses at St. George's Hospital in Alert Bay became suspicious of the man's medical competence and notified the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons.

A college probe ended Friday when they learned the whereabouts of the real Dr. Rifleman and notified police and the hospital board that Trujillo was an impostor.

His licence to practise was lifted by the college, the hospital board lifted his hospital privileges and police arrested him. He was taken to Port Hardy, 40 kilometres northwest of Alert Bay.

Port Hardy coroner R.M. Koch has ordered an autopsy. No date has been set.

Alert Bay is the main settlement on Cormorant Island off the northeast coast of Vancouver Island, about 300 kilometres northwest of Vancouver.

Dr. J.A. Hutchison of the college of physicians and surgeons said Trujillo had several aliases and presented himself at Alert Bay last November as Dr. Rifleman with original documents supporting the claim.

"We subsequently found he'd stolen them (the documents) from the real Dr. Rifleman when he was working somewhere in Mexico."

Hutchison said the real Dr. Rifleman was then registered in Colorado.

"He (Trujillo) had placed his photograph on the documents belonging to Rifleman."

Based on the documents, Trujillo was granted temporary registration to practise and went to Alert Bay, "where there is a desperate need for doctors," Hutchison said.

Health care in Alert Bay has been the focus of public attention since an inquest last June into the death of 11-year-old native Indian Renee Smith.

"Over the last several weeks Dr. Jack Pickup (an Alert Bay doctor) expressed concern as to the competency of this individual and a few nurses at the hospital did, too," Hutchison said. "He (Trujillo) wasn't very busy up there. He saw few patients."

Hutchison said he had no idea why Trujillo impersonated Dr. Rifleman.

"It's possible for someone with limited knowledge of medicine to keep up a pretence for several months, but inevitably they'll get caught."

Hospital administrator Robert Wilkinson said the man arrived Nov. 9 and practised in an office at the hospital.

"But he was not working as a hospital employee or anything like that," Wilkinson said.

The man's wife said her husband had been practising as a general practitioner for

Crisis troop plans readied

Tell us what you think

Should Canada boycott the Summer Olympics in Moscow to protest against the invasion of Afghanistan by the Soviet Union?

Prime Minister Clark has stated that Canada will join with the U.S. in a boycott if the Russians have not withdrawn by Feb. 20, two days after the federal election. Liberal leader Trudeau has said he is not in favor of a boycott, thus injecting the issue into the elction campaign. NDP leader Broadbent favors a boycott.

Friday and Saturday the Times published a ballot so readers could register their opinions, first on whether Canada should join a boycott and, second, on whether Canada should attempt to host the games as some have suggested.

If you missed the chance to express your opinion, please fill out the accompanying ballot, clip it and mail it to "Olympics," c/o Times Editorial Dept., 2621 Douglas St., Victoria, V8W 2N4, or bring it to the Times switchboard. If you wish to attach a brief comment to your ballot, please feel free to do so.

All ballots must be in by 9 a.m. next Friday for tabulation and publication of results that day. Results of the poll will be forwarded to Prime Minister Clark.

Please, the Times wants an honest expression of reader opinion, so if you have already sent in a ballot don't send in another. And only original coupons will be counted, no reproductions.

forces will be obtained through voluntary enlistment only.

He said Canada probably would never again have a conscription program.

Canada does not have peace time conscription. And if a war did break out between two superpowers, he said, it would be over so quickly there wouldn't be time to consider starting a conscription program.

"I don't see how any war between two super powers could stay non-nuclear. The day of the long-drawn-out war is over. For example, France will never again be an occupied country. She would use her nuclear weapons before she would let that happen."

McKinnon said the Canadian defence budget will be increased about 13 per cent in the coming year. The budget is set at the rate of inflation plus three per cent. The rate of inflation, for purposes of this calculation, has not yet been determined but is around 10 per cent.

He said a statement by Sinclair Stevens, president of the treasury board, that the budget will be increased by 17 per cent, came as a surprise.

"Maybe he's planning to play Santa Claus. I have not be informed of anything officially beyond the rate of inflation plus three per cent."

McKinnon said he could agree with a statement made in Halifax on the weekend by retired vice-admiral Douglas Boyle who said Canadian defence equipment was woefully out of date.

Boyle said the Canadian Voodoo and Starfighter planes were so old they might be dangerous to fly and 80 per cent of Canada's warships are due for the scrap heap.

McKinnon said the Tory government was about to rectify both problems when the election intervened.

The government plans a $2.3 billion program to buy more than 130 new planes to be followed by the contruction of six new frigates in Canadian shipyards.

He said Canada requires one new warship each year but only had four new ones during the past 17 years.

"We have not kept our forces up to date. In an emergency you can't just walk into a bazaar and order a fleet of ships and a fleet of planes. It doesn't work that way."

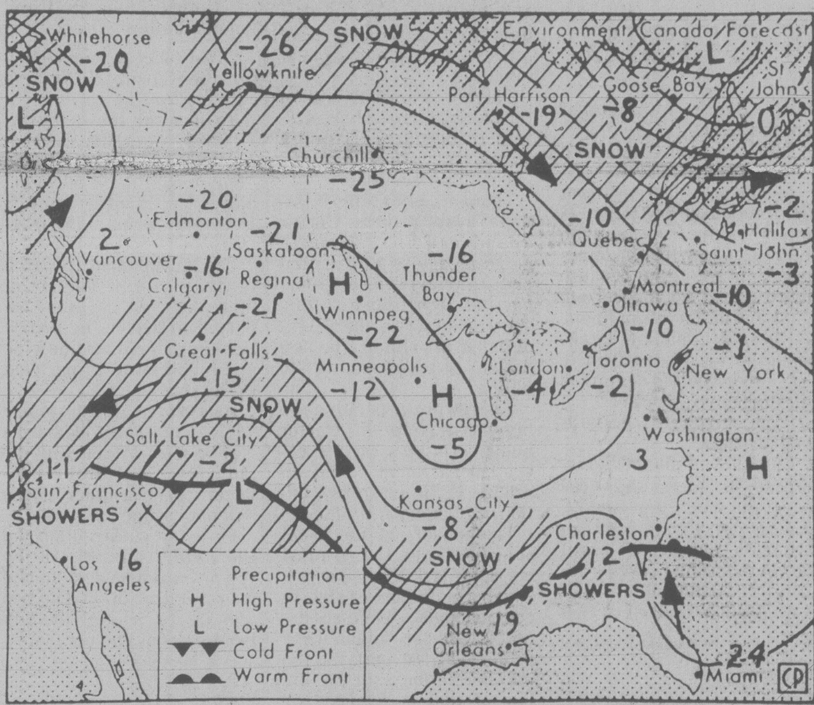

Map valid until noon Tuesday

A cold arctic high pressure through the interior will weaken through Tuesday as a disturbance from Alaska slides southward along the panhandle toward the north coast. Except for cloud and some localized snow flurry activity along the outer coasts little change is expected today for most areas with continuing clear and cold weather. However cloud and occasional snow is expected to spread southward across the north coast and into the Cariboo Tuesday accompanied by a trend toward milder temperatures.

More oil lies off Alaska?

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The oil-rich region off the coast of Alaska may have greater reserves than earlier thought, the U.S. Geological Survey said today.

The Survey, which last estimated Alaskan offshore reserves in 1975, said seismic studies to be completed this summer so far show that earlier esimates might be conservative, particularly in some areas.

Oswald Girard, deputy director of the Survey's Resource Department, said little would be known for sure until exploratory wells were drilled. This would be difficult and expensive because of the region's brutal climate.

The Survey, a U.S. government agency in charge of estimating mineral deposits on government lands, said in its new findings that oil reserves in the area may range between seven billion and 32 billion barrels of oil. Natural gas reserves now are estimated at between 30 trillion and 97 trillion cubic feet.

In 1975, Survey geologists estimated reserves in the area at between three billion and 31 billion barrels of oil and between eight trillion and 80 trillion cubic feet of natural gas.

Girard said the increases were primarily accounted for by new estimates of reserves.

Japan hit by oil hike

TOKYO (AP) — Saudi Arabia notified its Japanese customers it is raising the basic price of its crude oil $2 a barrel, bringing it to $26 U.S. ($30 Canadian), retroactive to Jan. 1, a petroleum industry source said today.

The source said the Saudis had informed their Japanese customers of the price increase. It was confirmed by an oil industry source in London.

The source in Tokyo, who declined to be identified, said Petromin, Saudi Arabia's state oil company, gave no reason for the price markup.

Invasion of the cheese heads

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (CP) — Washington state residents are learning to live with the cheeseheads — the term chosen by many residents of the border district of Whatcom County to describe their Canadian visitors.

The term is at the core of a controversy which began in late December when the Bellingham Herald finished an extensive, seven-part examination of Whatcom County's relationship with Canada by printing an article headlined Anti-Canadian feelings run deep locally and Neighbors or 'cheeseheads?'.

The story concluded that many Whatcom County residents felt Canadians were lording over a piece of the United States, hogging all the downtown parking spots and driving up the value of recreational property.

Overnight the newspaper and the chamber of commerce were deluged with letters from angry readers from Bellingham to Moose Jaw, Sask. The chamber dashed off a statement to a Vancouver newspaper saying the article did not reflect Whatcom County's feelings and Bellingham city council rushed to pass a resolution condeming it.

Soon afterward a goodwill mission of the town's burghers was organized to visit Vancouver Mayor Jack Volrich on Monday and forge new ties with their northern neighbors.

However, most residents — even some who toss around the phrase cheeseheads — welcome the Canadian visitor and his dollars.

Resentment is rarely overt and is usually laced with a sense of humor.

Tina Markusen, an employee of Jiffy Cleaners in Blaine, says "Sure we make fun of Canadians. Like we'll say 'Get off the road cheeseheads' but usually we'll only say that to each other."

She said the word cheesehead came from a television commerical for Canadian cheese.

"There's a big black cheese with arms and legs who says he's from Canada — the big cheese."

Since the early 1970's Canadians have filled their supermarkets, bought up recreational land and crowded Mount Baker and other parks.

In 1972, Canadians purchased $55.7 million worth of real estate in Whatcom County. By 1977 one out of five Whatcom County tax billings had Canadian addresses.

Lenny Helfgot, a history professor at Western Washington State University, says the relationship between Whatcom County and B.C. is the exact opposite of the relationship between Canada and the U.S.

"It's the old story of the mouse sleeping with the elephant. But in this case the mouse is American and the elephant is Canadian."

Study pen report, union tells A-G

VANCOUVER (CP) — The union representing guards at the Lower Mainland Regional Correctional Centre (Oakalla) has advised Attorney-General Allan Williams to study a report produced by an impartial third party before he finishes investigating recent problems in the women's section of the jail.

The prison in Burnaby, which houses about 50 women generally serving sentences of two years or less, has been hit by two prisoners' strikes and a riot in recent weeks.

Williams announced last week that he had asked his staff for a report on the situation.

The B.C. Government Employees Union has successfully fought two grievances leading to the reinstatement of two guards who had been fired at the prison.

A grievance award made public this week criticized conditions in the jail and ordered reinstatement with $21,000 in back pay of a guard who was fired 14 months ago for alleged gross negligence in allowing three prisoners to escape.

Rails lead to riches

VANCOUVER (CP) — A final computer printout of incomes earned by trainmen on the B.C. Railway will show that Ray Rebagliati did even better than anyone thought in 1979.

His income will reach $71,864 once the new 30-month B.C. Rail labor contracts are ratified and the 2,200 union members, including Rebagliati, get their retroactive pay.

The printout shows salaries for the railway's trainmen begin at $23,000. One trainmen is in the $50,000 range, three are in the $40,000 range, and 14 make more than $30,000 annually.

Rebagliati, who had disclosed he grossed $69,500 in 1979, topped the list even before he included the eight-per-cent raise retroactive to Aug. 1.

The proposed 30-month contract includes additional increases of nine per cent in the second year and five per cent over the remaining six months, compounded all the way.

Rebagliati said he earned his salary by working 17 hours a day, seven days a week, 10 months a year on work trains in the northern part of the province.

CN derailment blocks tracks

BOSTON BAR (CP) — Canadian National Railways crews were working Sunday to clear a derailment on the railway's main line near this community 140 kilometres north of Vancouver.

The line was blocked when 26 sulphur cars jumped the tracks Saturday afternoon. No injuries were reported.

CN traffic was being rerouted over CP Rail lines.

B.C.'s Iran?

The results of the fishing versus logging conflict last year on the Queen Charlotte Islands should not be sidetracked by an exaggerated comparision of events in revolutionary Iran and the actions of the federal fisheries department.

A forest engineer for Q.C. Timber, Eugene Runtz told a seminar organized by Camosum College that before being evacuated from Iran a year ago he had never seen a "menacing" gun in that country's forests. He left the impression that he had to come all the way to the Queen Charlotte Islands to feel threatened by gun-weilding insurgents wearing fisheries department uniforms.

You'll recall that the fisheries department arrested some 16 loggers employed by Q.C. Timber because the company refused to obey a fisheries directive to cease logging on steep slopes near Riley Creek at Rennell Sound. Fisheries officers were convinced that logging would result in land slides that would damage Riley Creek as fish spawning and rearing grounds.

Later a deal was made between senior officials of the fisheries department, the forest service and Q.C. Timber. The charges were dropped in return for certain measures that would supposedly protect the creek. The preventive work was done but, just before Christmas, the mountain sides in the logged area gave way, and debris ended up in the creek.

In his speech to the 100 or so people that attended the seminar, Runtz neglected to mention the recent slides. Although it is yet to be decided how much logging contributed to the slides, Runtz did concede that man's forest operations have in some instances aggravated the adverse natural conditions affecting fish life in streams.

As a result Q.C. Timber has undertaken a number of resource management and soil stability studies in the Rennell Sound area. Runtz said the company has spent a $1 million to purchase two Skyline Rigs, devices that allow logs to be yarded down mountain sides with less distrubance to the soil. Next year the company also plans to use helicopters to log sensitive, inaccessible areas.

"I emphasis that this company is prepared to spend the dollars necessary to satisfy demands and laws as they are expended by regulatory agencies," Runtz said.

Nobody expects anything less from any forest company. And nobody expects fisheries officers not to exercise those regulations as they did last spring on the Queen Charlotte Islands.

Political oil

Liberal leader Pierre Trudeau still refuses to deal in cold figures when detailing his party's plans for raising oil prices. He now says it will be Liberal policy to tailor a "made in Canada price" that will reflect the cost of producing oil from conventional and non-conventional means.

It seems incredible that after 11 years as the Canadian government and eight months as the official opposition, the Liberal party is unable to put a price on a oil. The variables that the Liberals would use to come up with its "made in Canada" price are no different now that they will be after Feb. 18.

Trudeau suggests that pinpointing an oil price before the election would be premature because the information isn't available to assess the price. What nonsense.

It is estimated that in 1980, as a result of the latest OPEC price hikes, Canadians will be subsidizing the oil importing eastern provinces by $1.3 billion dollars a year. That amounts to $115 for every man, woman and child.

Trudeau and the Liberals know the domestic price must go up. They just don't want to name a specific price because it will cost them votes. They'll deliver the unhappy news after the election — if they win.

Tangling with big tonnage

It's a fine romantic image — that of conservationists out on the high seas blockading oil tankers that threaten the west coast. There they are in small, fragile boats against all odds turning away a huge, lumbering supertanker. It's an image that brings the media and public attention at a gallop. The reality is something quite different.

The results of the last blockade Greenpeace and others staged on this coast, showed there is a fine distinction between the brave and the foolhardy when it comes to crossing paths with an iron hulk that has no chance of stopping.

Subsidized cruise

At the height of the controversy over the proposed oil port at Kitimat a couple of years back, mayors and aldermen from northern B.C. communities held their annual convention aboard the Canadian Pacific steamer, Princess Patricia. Representatives of Kitimat Oil Pipeline Limited were also aboard. In fact the company convinced the politicans to cruise part of the proposed tanker route between Alaska and Kitimat, and in return picked up part of the charter cost.

The thought of KPL holding these local politicans captive for four days angered fishermen and conservation groups along the whole north coast. They organized a blockade at the mouth of Douglas Channel. The idea was to stop the Princess Pat while she was en route to Kitimat, board her and pass out anti-pipeline information to the local politicians.

As a member of the local press corps, a seat was found for me aboard a 22-foot speedboat chartered by a group called Save Our Shores. We left Prince Rupert for the four-hour trip south in a full-blown gale.

Until we reached the calmer waters of Grenville Channel, the six of us on board had hands pressed to the ceiling trying to keep our petrified butts in the seats. At one point — I believe we were airborne between the crests of two waves — the driver announced that "the boat could take it, it's people who can't." I wondered if he would let me off at the closest lighthouse.

By the time we flew into Hartley Bay, a small Indian village near the site of the blockade, we were almost out of gas. The needle was waving over the "E".

A flotilla of 20 or so vessels, made up of fishboats, herring skiffs, a Greenpeace launch and the United Church missionary boat were moving out into the channel to await the arrival of the Princess Pat. Our driver thought it better to forego trying to find fuel rather than miss the action.

There wasn't much wind at Hartley Bay, but there was low cloud, occassional rain and about two miles visiblity. The blockade boats spread out across the mile-wide channel, ready to intercept the steamer.

As we bobbed around in the chuck between the forested mountainsides, the environmentalists on our boat prepared a protest sign. They unfurled a piece of canvas almost the length of the boat and strung it along the port side. During their preparations, the engine died. The Princess Pat was about 20 minutes away and we were out of fuel. Fortunately a nearby fishboat had a jerry can of gass and donated about three gallons to a good cause.

Finally, out of the mist to the south, the white hull and two funnels of the Princess Pat appeared. About 30 boats had now joined the blockade flotilla and they began to move across the channel in an effort to cut off the larger vessel.

The Princess Pat was travelling about 17 knots and it became obvious she wasn't about to stop. A couple of open herring skiffs and an inflatable boat from the Greenpeace launch were darting back and forth across the bow of the ship.

Looking up from the water level at the bow of moving vessel that is more than 200 feet long is one scary sight. Tons of iron slicing through the water are indifferent to logs, small boats, people, anything that crosses their path. While the Greenpeace inflatable (carrying two men wearing wet suits) played in the Princess Pat's bow wake, the other vessels were streaming along side, bullhorns blaring and signs waving. People at the rails of the Princess Pat were looking down, waving.. A helicopter carrying a television cameraman was hovering overhead.

Our own boat was also alongside. Our problem was that the sign we were carrying was draped over the port side windows. Our driver couldn't see how close he was to the Princess Pat. A fellow stood at the stern, yelling out directions.

In the meantime, the men in the Greenpeace inflatable ran afoul of the steamer's bow. The rubber boat upended, tossing the two men into the water. Everyone who saw the collision held his breath until the two Greenpeace disciples appeared in the Pat's stern wake. They were underwater for at least 10 seconds.

Still the Princess Pat refused to stop. She bullied her way through the crowd of small boats, and with a puff of black smoke from her stacks she was off, up Douglas Channel to Kitimat.

The show may have been over for everyone else, but not our driver. He gunned the throttle, and before I knew it, we were out in front of the Princess Pat, criss-crossing her bow. There was no doubt we could outrun her, but with only a miniscule amount of fuel remaining, we were the proverbial sitting ducks if our engine died. Luckily it didn't; it waited until we were about to tie up at Hartley Bay a couple of minutes later.

Larger quarry

Greenpeace has now threatened to take on larger quarry. Foundation president Patrick Moore says supertankers carrying Alaska crude bound for a new oil port at Port Angeles may be blockaded.

Those tankers are several times larger than the Princess Pat and the decision to stop one would have to made well before a flotilla of small boats was even in sight.

Blockading is far from romantic: it's dangerous. The reality is that big boats can demand right of way.

P.S. For anyone who's going to blockade anyway, being picky about who is at the helm of your protest launch wouldn't hurt.

Threat to peace

The events leading up to the Russian occupation of Afghanistan are unclear. However, what is clear to each of us is the additional threat to world peace.

Since the events in Iran and Afghanistan many nations have asked for increases in "defence" spending. The SALT talks are in jeopardy, and the big "powers" are flexing their collective muscles. The policy of restraint is becoming harder to defend.

The effects of this crisis on the individual are harder to define. For us the thought of nuclear war is so terrifying we can be led to believe that a secure national defence will protect us in the event of a "limited" nuclear war. We are beginning to believe that we should use our NORAD nuclear capability as a last resort. The realities are somewhat different. No defence system can protect us from readioactive fallout, no increased defence system can defend us from the cancer and genetic damage that fallout causes. Radioactive fallout will travel around the globe — it will not stop at our borders because we are the good guys. No matter who unleashes a "limited" nuclear war, we will all suffer.

Russia's occupation of Afghanistan is morally deplorable and shows a contempt for human rights and liberty. They have placed increased pressure on the SALT talks and shaken the marginal trust the Western nations may have been developing. This act of agression has threatened each of us. We must protest, if not for the people in Afghanistan, than for ourselves. — Michelle Mudie, Executive Director, Greenpeace Victoria, 2-503 Yates Street.

Ripple effect

At 7:30 p.m., Jan. 14, in the council chambers of Saanich, there occurred a two-hour hearing concerning whether an industrial spot zoning should be allowed within an otherwise completely "rural/residential" zone.

The area is adjacent to Prospect Lake Road — a lovely narrow, winding little road, full of natural charm — close to the lake and children's park. The area is one of the beauty spots close to Victoria, only 6½ miles from downtown Woolco. It is part of the green belt and in the watershed area. The stream which runs through the subject property runs directly into Prospect Lake.

The turnout by those living in the neighborhood must have indicated to council the deep interest taken by these residents. While four people, not necessarily from the immediate area under discussion rose to argue in favor of the applicant for the spot zoning, five local residents speaking on behalf of 15 interested parties argued vehemently against it.

Mayor Couvelier informed council that the fire department is against the rezoning for the apparently obvious reasons of a greatly increased fire hazard due to the nature of the work. The planning department of Saanich is opposed.

Ald. Mika said that the grounds for allowing the application to have reached this stage were "compassionate" because of the efforts and time involved by the applicant. While this could be considered as a noble gesture, where has the compassion gone for those people whose property could drop in value because of a spot zoning while property taxes in the area have increased considerably in the 1980 assessments.

The applicant states that the use of the commercial buildings which he has already built, are for the dual purpose of "hobby" and "industrial business." While it may not be anticipated that a great many trucks and such like would be going on and off the property, there would be no possible control concerning the number of vehicles involved should future requirements so demand them.

Mika voted against the application, although he stated that until he had heard from the local people he had intended to vote with it because of the compassion he felt for a very sincere man. As a representative of the people Alderman Mika realized where his loyalties truly were.

If we wish to keep Victoria as one of the most beautiful areas in the world it is necessary to see clearly that a 'little' decision is like a pebble thrown into a pond — it makes larger and larger ripples. Let us make the pebble one which makes ripples that will not deteriorate our precious heritage. — Mrs. F. Mary Owen, 4573 Prospect Lake Road.

Prepare in unity

At a time when tragic events are taking place in some parts of the world with possible grave results beyond our immediate grasp, it is imperative that we look beyond our own peaceful boundaries and become a strong, united country, determined to protect, defend, uphold democratic ideals by all means at our disposal.

There is one important thing that the electorate should ask of all candidates in the federal election: regardless of the results of the vote, will they start the new parliament in a spirit of goodwill and co-operation, even if stability should mean a coalition of our major parties? Coalitions have worked with a remarkable degree of success in many parts of the world, especially in times of international unrest.

Regardless of a general feeling of almost helpless apathy we, the people, should act as responsible citizens and exercise our franchise. It doesn't require a great effort to make sure that we are on the voters lists, that we know where to go to cast our ballot.

Surely some steps could be taken by federal officials in charge of the election to make sure that persons in hospitals and nursing homes are not deprived of their franchise. Some local benevolent societies should make an effort to provide transportation for handicapped and for people living in isolated communities. It would be a further step if, beside the advance polls, we could have the absentee vote which now is just limited to military personnel serving abroad, not to civilians who couldn't cancel business commitments or prepaid vacations outside Canada.

The U.S. has the absentee vote and even the very tiny Republic of San Marino, in central Italy, provides free air transportation to her residents in foreign countries.

Let us make February 18, 1980 a day when we re-affirm our faith in democracy: for, in spite of some imperfections, shortcomings and failures, democracy is still the best form of government: good enough for the millions who gave their lives to preserve it, or who came back from the battlefields of two world Wars bearing the permanent scars of sacrifice. — E. I. Lattes, 432-200 Dallas Road.

Crash coming

Sooner or later the price of gold is going to come back down to earth, regardless what the peddlars of dreams expound, and when the price of gold does come down to earth the "great" stock market crash of 1929 will look totally anemic by comparison. Anyone who has vast sums of money poured into gold will dispute the crash theory, no doubt; speculators nearly always tend to fortify themselves psychologically against the thought of loss even though the unwritten law of speculation is: speculative collapses always follow speculative booms.

When the price of gold will collapse is anyone's guess. Let's just hope the savings institutions have not gambled too irresponsibly with their depositors hard-earned savings in the meantime. — J. Wickstrom, 3264 Shelley St.

Confused Charles

Charles Barber seems to be confused about the market place. First of all you have to have a seller and then you have to have a buyer. Many investors in B.C. must have decided to sell their shares and our friends in the east must have decided to buy the shares. The only way you could stop people from selling would be not to allow transfer privileges and had that been attempted in the first place there would have been few buyers if any.

In conclusion, B.C. investors wanted to sell and eastern investors wanted to buy. — Harry Mearns, 3055 Rutland Road.

Fun aplenty

Kitchener-Waterloo (Ont.) Collegiate and Vocational School is holding its 125th anniversary celebrations on May 16, 17, 18.

All former students (no, you don't have to be a graduate) are invited. There will be fun; fellowship and events aplenty.

You can get all the information by writing: Anniversary Reunion, Kitchener-Waterloo Collegiate, 787 King Street West, Kitchener, Ontario, N2G 1E8.

Please include the years you attended so you can be grouped with former classmates. — Sandy Baird, General Chairman, Kitchener-Waterloo Collegiate Reunion.

Victoria Landmarks

Some local firefighters may know that in 1860 — when Vancouver Island was still a colony and Victoria not yet an incorporated city — the Council of Vancouver Island was discussing "A Bill for the Protection of the Members of Fire Companies of Victoria."

On July 10, 1860, the bill had its second reading, and it was agreed that the foremen of the two fire companies and of the Hook and Ladder Company be asked to attend the council chamber on July 12.

So a circular was sent to the Union Hook and Ladder Company, the Deluge Engine Company and the Tiger Engine Company. They were asked to bring "the bylaws or rules and regulations of your Company, if there are any such in existence."

At the next two meetings witnesses were examined and evidence taken. On July 20th, the amended bill passed.

Later came the equipment now displayed in a case by the No. 1 Firehall in the 1200 block of Yates. The case contains "The Redfern" steam engine pump, and a horse-drawn vehicle for the VFD's chief engineer. Also there is the fire and curfew bell, installed on City Hall, called volunteer firemen to duty.

Nowadays the equipment is different. But the danger, urgency and anxiety of a big fire remain.

Can barefoot coffee cure my hangover?

Order "regular coffee" and what do you get?

"In the United States," reports Phil Shea, public-relations director of Sheraton hotels, "with only one exception, an order for 'regular coffee' would produce plain coffee with sugar and cream on the side.

"The exception is Boston. An order for 'regular coffee' in the coffee shop would produce coffee with cream already added, and sugar on the side. In the hotel restaurant, the waiter would question the guest to clarify the order."

Since Americans drink about 460 million cups of java on a winter's day, it may be helpful to examine other regional language distinctions in the ordering of coffee. I put the question to the president of the National Coffee Association, who started talking about a study of "preferences for creaming agents." I could tell he was not my man; to me, a "creaming agent" is a hit man.

Vann E. Hettinger, a reader from Redding, Conn., supplied a useful variation: "coffee, light," in the North, is coffee that is light-colored because of the great amount of cream, half-and-half, milk, non-dairy creamer, or other, uh, creaming agent, it contains. However, in the Southeast, "coffee, light" means coffee with a small amount of white stuff — the "light" refers to going lightly on the cream, or not pouring with a heavy hand.

Perhaps because of this confusion about "light," or perhaps a spillover from British usage about tea, the word "white" is sometimes used to differentiate an order from "black" coffee. When used in the United States, "coffee, white" means "not black" and leaves to the pourer's discretion the amount of cream to agent.

The man from DARE — Prof. F. G. Cassidy, editor of the Dictionary of American Regional English — saw this query as a perfect example of our language's variety.

"Get down into Tennessee and such parts," reports Cassidy, "and they'll know what egg coffee is — you throw eggshells in the pot so the last of the egg white will settle the grounds and clear the coffee. Coffee is serious stuff, but jocular types may call it barefoot (black) and with socks on (white). Get down to New Orleans and a different distinction comes up: coffee will be either chicory or pure (no chicory). Get out West and you may be lucky enough to find range or cowboy coffee, which when properly made is 'boilt.' The wagon cook's recipe, or receipt, for making cowboy coffee went something like this: 'Take two pounds of Arbuckle's, put in 'nough water to wet it down, boil for two hours, and then throw in a hoss shoe. If the hoss shoe sinks, she ain't ready.' "

How is weak coffee characterized? Americans are united on dishwater, though bilgewater is heard up North, stump water down South, and scared water out West. In Virginia, it's driddle water.

Strong coffee is equated in the American language with good coffee: words of praise include Norwegian, creekbank, sawmill, shanty and sheepherder's coffee. However, Professor Cassidy reports that, on occasion, strength and viscosity go too far, and in rural Wisconsin farmers complain: "It's too thick to drink, and too wet to plow."

The best put-down is "If this is coffee, bring me tea, and if it's tea, bring me coffee." At my local greasy spoon, after the confusion of "coffee, light" and arguments over what constitutes "regular," I always sing out, "Coffee, with a side of soybean creamer and a packet of saccharin," which gets me coffee, regular, along with a black look.

Systematics

Certain words grab business namers by the throat. For a time, "organization" had a vogue — "The Lawrence Organization." Then the British "group" surfaced, giving the impression of a vast array of enterprises under one roof: "The Continental Group," "The Diebold Group." Recently, the pretentious "centre" was examined here — "learning centre" for school, or "vision centre" for an eyeglasses shop.

Comes now "system." It all began, I think, when a gun manufacturer who liked complexity began calling his weapon a "weapons system," because it fit with other weapons, or wheels. Interconnection was the key: teachers like "school systems" like astronomers like "solar systems."

"Driving along a New England road last weekend," writes Richard Schickel, essayist and reviewer for Time magazine, "I observed, in front of a most unprepossessing wooden structure, little more than a shack, a roadside sign offering "energy systems" within. Wondering how anything so grand could emerge from such humble surroundings, I allowed my eye to slide down the sign only to discover that what was really being sold were 'wood-burning stoves.' "

Schickel then became systemically attuned: he noticed that the corner flower shop had become a purveyor of "foliage systems," and that advertisers of razors and blades liked to combine the two into a saleable "shaving system." This shook him: "It seems to me that we ought to reserve the term 'system' for things no less complex than ICBMs."

He's right; I never liked calling a pond an "ecosystem." The systematic vogue must soon peak; we can wrap it together with "package deal" and get it out of our systems. Before accepting the pompous word again, I promise to recall my grandmother's remark, made whenever she surveyed evidence of disorganization: "Is this a system?"

Delivery Systems

The systems analysis led me to "Anytime Delivery Systems" and "Archer Courier Systems" of New York, and "Choice Courier Systems" of Washington, D.C. We are now dealing with the terminology of speedy delivery.

In New York, private delivery services usually call themselves "messengers," though some have changed to the more elite-sounding "courier," such as "Big Apple Courier." In Washington, probably because of the local tradition of "diplomatic courier," (with attache case chained to his wrist), the word "messenger" is less often used — the preference is for "couriers" and "delivery systems," with an occasional "express."

In Washington, the names of these services reflect a bureaucratic stodginess: "All State Air Courier," "Dependable Courier," "Dulles Delivery," "National Courier."

In New York City, however, the accent is on speed: "ABC Comet Messenger" streaks alongside "Dash Messenger" — and "Charger Messenger" is best for San Juan Hill; "Flash Messenger" vies with "Instant Courier," "Dash Messenger" and "Rocket Messenger Service." Is "Spurt Messenger" faster than "Bullet Courier Systems" or "On the Double Messenger"? What special edge do "Orbit Messenger," "Supersonic Messenger" and "ESP Messenger Service" provide?

If I were starting a private delivery service and wanted to stand out from the pack, I would choose something like "Lethargic Couriers," or "What's the Big Rush? Delivery Systems" or "Dawdling Messenger."

Only one agency now in business approaches that idea: the "En Route Messenger Service." ("Where the hell is your man? I called an hour ago!" "He's en route.")

Cuba's 'foxtrots' worry U.S.

ROBERT C. TOTH
Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — A third Soviet submarine for the Cuban Navy is on its way to the Caribbean island, according to U.S. defence officials.

Now crossing the Atlantic and flying a Cuban flag, the Foxtrot-class diesel submarine is expected to reach Cuba's expanding naval base at Cienfuegos within about a week. There it will join another Foxtrot vessel and an old Whisky-class submarine used for training purposes. Both were supplied last year.

"Foxtrot" and "Whisky" are NATO designations for the two classes of Soviet submarines.

The subs are the latest deliveries in a series of substantial arms shipments to Cuba in recent years of sophisticated Soviet weapons, including 12 or more high-performance MiG-23 jets and at least two high-speed, well-equipped hydrofoil patrol craft.

The new arms buildup, valued at $550 million over the past five years, has given Cuba a small but growing capacity to interfere in time of crisis with U.S. troop and supply ships from Gulf of Mexico ports, with oil tankers from Venezuela and with ship traffic of all kinds through the Panama Canal, officials said.

Administration planners have become increasingly concerned with Cuba's growing role in unstable Caribbean island-states such as Grenada, where Cubans are training about 3,000 local troops, sources said.

There is no sign that the administration is planning to counter the Cuban activities, however, beyond the increased U.S. military exercises and intelligence-monitoring operations ordered by President Carter Oct. 1 after a Soviet "combat brigade" was discovered on the island.

Carter told visiting editors this month that he had a "deep concern about Cuba's efforts to intrude in other countries," such as Angola and Ethiopia in Africa and Yemen on the Arabian peninsula, with soldiers and military advisers.

But he said Cuba has had "limited success in this hemisphere" and suffered a "very severe setback" when, in the wake of the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, many of the so-called non-aligned countries failed to vote for Cuba to get a seat on the United Nations Security Council.

Administration planners say they believe that three kinds of events could halt Cuban adventurism: getting a "bloody nose" in Africa, which might happen, for example, if Cuban troops went up against South Africans; losing Moscow's economic subsidies, now running at $8 million a day; or failing to maintain influence in the Third World.

Some officials believe the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan will make Third World nations much more wary of Cuban help, unless Premier Fidel Castro moves to dissociate himself from Moscow's aggression.

Administration sources note, however, that the return of Cuba's foreign expeditionary forces — [illegible] ing 30,000 to 40,000, or about one-fourth of Cuba's 160,000-man army — could pose a potentially significant domestic security problem for Castro. To solve it, he could send some of them into volatile countries in the Caribbean or Central America.

So far, officials said, Castro is exploiting unrest in the region judiciously, for the most part, by sending doctors and teachers to aid the populace and by sending only low-profile advisers to some governments.

The most blatant exception has been in Grenada, whose former premier, Eric Gairy, was ousted in a coup last March by a group called the People's Revolutionary Army, using arms reportedly brought in on a Cuban boat.

Soon afterwards, a large contingent of Cuban military and security advisers, as well as medical and educational personnel, moved in.

The Cubans are providing basic military training for about 3,000 Grenadans and have promised to build a $10 million airfield there.

Grenada was the first former British colony in the Caribbean in which the legally elected government suffered a coup, and the fear is that other poor island states with "one-crop" economies will follow suit.

Jamaica, Antigua, Dominica and St. Lucia are among the islands that have both severe problems and leftist governments in which Cubans or Cuban-trained nationals have considerable influence, sources said.

In Central America, Cuban aid to the Nicaraguan rebels during their successful revolution is being followed up with doctors and teachers.

There is some anxiety in Washington that Cuban influence in El Salvador and other republics in the area is growing significantly.

The administration strategy has been to provide economic aid to troubled islands, hoping to show that greater benefits are available from Washington than from Havana.

The administration's attempt to normalize relations with Cuba in 1977 foundered on Castro's military interventions in Africa and Asia, but the White House has declined to take punitive steps.

Most worrisome to Pentagon officials is the Cuban military buildup in recent years of large weapons systems, including missile-firing patrol craft, which is creating a small but growing air and submarine threat in the Gulf of Mexico.

Foreign example in Tokyo cage

TOKYO — Singer Paul McCartney flew into the face of some of the world's most stringent anti-narcotics laws when he landed at Japan's new international airport carrying what police said was eight ounces of marijuana in his luggage.

The local police saw "no reason to treat him any differently from anyone else," a top police official said.

"Marijuana use is spreading throughout Japan as a sort of recreation or a fashion," said a recent national police report, largely blaming foreign influence for introducing it and expressing the fear uncontrolled "marijuana abuse" could lead to "a major drug problem."

As part of the anti-marijuana campaign, Japan's special narcotics investigators appeared anxious to make an example of McCartney, who was held 10 days before being deported.

The narcotics police have arrested a number of Japan's top show business personalities on marijuana charges in the past [illegible]. Other stars have been accused of using amphetamines.

Police routinely question suspects about every conceivable contact, relying upon Japanese guilt feelings to get long lists of names and other information.

Productivity tablet?

It could be the answer that Britain's troubled car industry has been seeking — a little white tablet that keeps production workers happy.

The Japanese motor industry believes it is an important aid to its productivity and now workers at a British car plant are being invited to take a daily dose of ginseng.

Doctors who are hoping to start clinical tests next month are anxious to cast aside ginseng's reputation as a Chinese aphrodisiac, claiming its true effect is to reduce stress and act as a tonic.

"It is of the greatest help to people who are under pressure or who have monotonous jobs," said Mr. Hamilton Cooper, managing director of English Grains, manufacturing chemists of Burton-on-Trent, which is providing ginseng tablets for the test.

And the firm involved? "Well, it's not British Leyland although I'm certain they will be keen to see the published results," said Mr. Cooper. "At the moment the doctors who will be running the tests are talking to union representatives about the scheme."

Carter 'weak' with Soviet says attacking Kennedy

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Senator Edward Kennedy, fighting to revitalize his campaign for the United States presidency, accused President Carter today of being weak with the Soviet Union and called for sweeping price controls to halt U.S. inflation.

"I have only just begun to fight," the U.S. senator from Massachusetts said in what was billed as a major campaign speech. Kennedy once held a two-to-one lead over Carter for the 1980 Democratic presidential nomination but has sunk well below the president in recent weeks.

Kennedy accused Carter of exaggerating the threat posed by the Soviet military intervention in Afghanistan and said Moscow might have been encouraged by Carter's weakness in the past.

He also said Carter administration policies might have led to the taking of American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran, Iran.

He urged the administration to call for a United Nations investigation into the Iranian revolutionary government's complaints against the deposed shah of Iran as a means of resolving the hostage crisis.

Calling Carter's fight against inflation a failure, Kennedy said in his speech at Georgetown University here: "There is only one recourse. The president should impose an immediate six-month freeze on inflation."

He explained that this freeze would include mandatory controls "as long as necessary" on prices and wages, profits, dividends, interest rates and rent.

The senator, whose political fortunes began to decline when he publicly criticized the former Iranian monarch at the height of the hostage crisis, said he has no apologies to make for his sweeping criticisms of the Carter position on Afghanistan.

Saying that Americans must openly discuss foreign crises today just as they did when the Nazis were sweeping across Europe, Kennedy said:

"I make no apology for raising questions about the Carter doctrine" of opposing Soviet expansion into the Persian Gulf area.

Kennedy said he agrees that the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan was brutal aggression.

"But is this really the gravest threat to peace since World War II?" he asked.

Comparing the situation in Afghanistan to that in Cuba, Kennedy noted sarcastically that Carter had called the presence of Soviet combat troops on that island unacceptble when that issue arose last summer.

"But soon he changed his mind," Kennedy said. "He charged up the hill — and then charged back down. . . . The false draw in Cuba may have invited the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan."

Kennedy said it is time for the United States to seek a way out of the hostage crisis by supporting creation of a United Nations commission to investigate Iran's grievances against the deposed shah.

Face lift for Margaret

LONDON (UPI) — Princess Margaret, 50-year-old younger sister of Queen Elizabeth II, has had a facelift to tighten the outline of her chin and jowls, the News of the World newspaper said Sunday.

In a frontpage story, the newspaper — which specializes in sensational stories — said the Queen's younger sister underwent the "minor facelift" Jan. 2 at the exclusive London clinic. At the time it was announced the surgery was for "benign skin lesions."

Women's draft list supported

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Army Secretary Clifford Alexander said Sunday women ought to be included in President Carter's plans to resume draft registration in the United States.

Female soldiers are able to handle anything that men can, Alexander said, but he stopped short of going on the record in favor of putting women into combat.

Interviewed on ABC's Issues and Answers program, the army secretary said he personally favors "the registration of women."

"If there were a draft — and no one is discussing a draft now — but if there were a draft and you wanted to either have women drafted for non-combat or combat positions, you would know where they were," he said.

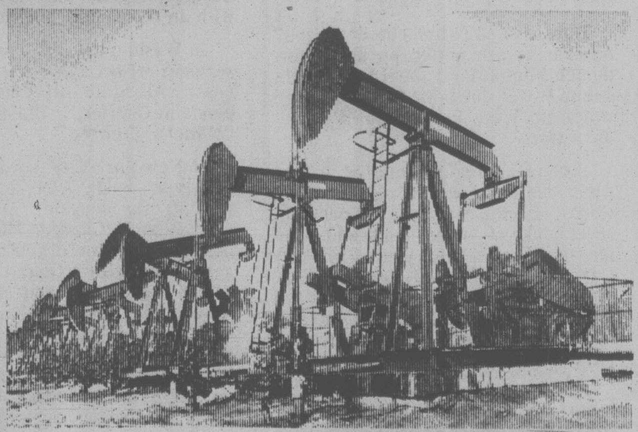
THAT'S WHAT IMPERIAL INVESTED IN CANADA IN 1979... A LOT MORE THAN ITS PROFITS.
HERE'S WHERE SOME OF THE MONEY WENT:

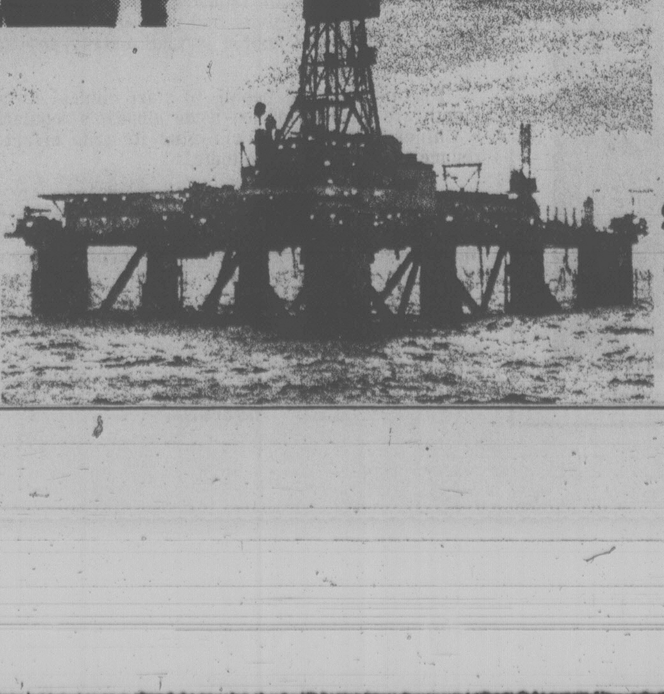
$10,000
That's what one diamond drill bit costs. It may last only a few hours in hard rock. Expensive? Yes. And a part of Imperial's conventional energy exploration investment of $470,000,000 in 1979.



$43,000,000
Getting oil out of the sands of Cold Lake, Alberta, is one of the most important energy projects of this century. The $43,000,000 spent in 1979 is only part of this $7 billion project.

$10,000,000
Modifying Imperial's Dartmouth refinery to handle heavier crude oil cost $10,000,000 in 1979 – part of a $60,000,000 investment. The results will be a more flexible supply of oil for Canada's Atlantic provinces.

$191,000,000
Continued development drilling and expenditures to squeeze more oil and gas from oil wells – both of these are technically complex and very expensive. Additional oil from mature wells can be as significant as a new discovery.



$185,000
That's how much it cost each day to run an off shore drilling rig.

When you think new energy, think billions.

Over the next decade, our investments could total $15 billion. But perhaps the most striking figure of all is the $300,000,000 Imperial had to borrow last year to meet energy investment commitments.

When you hear about oil company profits, we hope you will remember oil company investments.

Bani-Sadr to curb radicals

TEHRAN (CP) — Abolhassan Bani-Sadr, apparent winner of Iran's presidential election, has made it clear he is not prepared to accept a parallel government in the form of radical Moslems holding 50 Americans hostage at the U.S. Embassy.

In a radio and television interview Sunday night the 46-year-old finance minister said the militants, who have become national heroes after seizing the embassy 12 weeks ago, are free to express their views but the government is there to govern.

"If in Iran we have two governments, for example one the students and the second one the Revolutionary Council, this condition is not acceptable," he said.

Bani-Sadr criticized in particular a militant statement on Saturday which attacked the government's decision to send a delegation to the Islamic foreign ministers' conference in Islamabad, Pakistan.

He said the militants should first have approached the ruling Revolutionary Council to hear its reasons for deciding to attend the meeting.

Bani-Sadr was speaking as latest estimates showed that he has won about 70 per cent of the vote in Friday's presidential elections. Final figures are expected today.

Bani-Sadr said at a news conference Sunday the release of the U.S. hostages will be possible if the United States stops all interference in Iranian internal affairs and concedes the right of Iran "to pursue criminals anywhere else in the world."

The issue of the approximately 50 Americans who today began their 86th day in captivity at the U.S. Embassy is "one depending on the main issue, namely America's domination over Iran," Bani-Sadr said.

"Thus our main expectation is not only that the U.S.A. should definitely change its attitude on dominating Iran but also that adequate safeguards should be created to ensure that it will in no way interfere in our internal affairs in the future either," he continued.

Bani-Sadr also condemned the Soviet military intervention in neighboring Afghanistan. He said Iran will assist the Afghan Moslem rebels fighting the Soviet occupation army and might also boycott the Olympics in Moscow this summer.

Record crowd greets Mugabe

SALISBURY (AP) — An estimated 500,000 persons, the largest crowd in Rhodesia's history, turned out to welcome Marxist guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe home from self-imposed exile in Mozambique to campaign for next month's election.

The vast crowd Sunday at the black township of Highfield, outside Salisbury, provided the first gauge of Mugabe's popular support in his three-way race for power with fellow guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo and Bishop Abel Muzorewa, Rhodesia's first elected black prime minister.

The turnout far outnumbered the 120,000 who greeted Nkomo, a member of the minority Ndebele tribe, when he returned from exile in Zambia two weeks ago.

Muzorewa, like Mugabe, is a member of the dominant Shona tribe but has been drawing dwindling crowds as he campaigns for control of the government that will be formed after the election Feb. 27-29. He was elected prime minister in Rhodesia's first universal-suffrage election last April but gave up the post under terms of the British-sponsored agreement to halt a seven-year guerrilla war and hold new elections.

Mugabe kicked off his campaign with a pledge that the 230,000 white settlers will not be driven from the country if his party, the Zimbabwe African National Union, wins the election.

"If whites want to stay under our rule they can; we will respect them if they respect us," Mugabe told a cheering crowd that overflowed eight soccer fields.

"If they have homes or businesses we will not seize them. We did not fight to remove them from their jobs or take their homes or to drive them out, but to create equality and the removal of all forms of discrimination."

Hijacking for Sadr

BEIRUT (AP) — A lone Lebanese man armed with a kitchen knife, who hijacked a Lebanese jetliner today to focus attention on a missing Moslem spiritual leader, freed his hostages and surrendered, authorities said.

"I only meant to make our voice heard," the hijacker, who identified himself as Alis Issa, 28, of the southern Lebanese town of Aitarum, told reporters after he surrendered. "I want all Islamic countries to exert themselves and resolve the mystery of the disappearance of Iman Musa Al Sadr."

BRING CAPITAL PUNISHMENT TO PARLIAMENT HILL

This election, know what you're voting for.

The issues have never been more pressing; their resolution never more crucial to the future of this country. Capital punishment is one of those issues. And no matter which side you take, it's essential that the candidate who gets your vote, truthfully represents your beliefs.

Find out where your candidate stands on capital punishment. Let's not repeat the breakdown in communications we've seen before: 70% of the population favouring retention, and 50% of their elected representatives voting for abolition.

The Canadian Police Association is for capital punishment – whether a premeditated murder involves one of us or one of you. We've made our feelings known and we'll vote accordingly.

Make sure your new MP represents what you believe. Ask this simple question: ARE YOU FOR OR AGAINST THE USE OF CAPITAL PUNISHMENT?

Slow sales cause 250-man layoff at island sawmill

About 250 employees of Western Forest Industries at Lake Cowichan will be laid off in February for at least a month because of declining markets for lumber.

The company said it will have to lay off 150 sawmill workers on Feb. 1 and its remaining 100 employees by Feb. 11.

In Vancouver a spokesman for the International Woodworkers of America says province-wide layoffs in the forest industry will reach about 9,500 by next week.

The 51,000-member IWA is blaming market conditions and increased interest rates which have slowed construction for the layoffs.

Hardest hit is the plywood section, where about 3,000 workers — or 30 per cent of the work force — are off the job. Industry officials have predicted the rate will reach 40 per cent.

IWA spokesman Clay Perry said only about one-third of the 11,500 workers laid off during the Christmas holiday period are back on the job. Normally, about two-thirds of those laid off return to work after Christmas, he said.

Crown Zellerbach has announced that its Fraser Mills sawmill and plywood mill in nearby Coquitlam which employs 1,000 workers, will shut down for at least two weeks starting Monday because of a log shortage.

However, Gerry Stoney, president of the IWA's New Westminster local, said he cannot understand how the company can be suffering from a log shortage when other companies appear to have an adequate supply.

At Lake Cowichan, Roger Stanyer of the IWA's Duncan local, said that while the union was concerned about the February layoff, it was even more worried about the long-term welfare of the Lake Cowichan workers, since the operation is expected to run out of timber within three years. He said the IWA is urging the provincial government to make more timber available to the company so it can continue to operate.

In case you're wondering

Whatever happened to the beautiful fountain that used to be in the centre of the intersection at Douglas and Hillside?

City archivist Ainslie Helmcken says the original cast-iron fountain which decorated the centre of the intersection for more than 50 years now sits in Market Square in downtown Victoria.

It was given to the city in 1885 by Joseph Heywood and former mayor John Grant, who raised $1,200 for the fountain and a horse trough.

Teamsters [illegible] wagons from the brickyards on [illegible] Douglas would halt to water their horses there, halfway to the docks at Rock Bay where the bricks were loaded aboard scows.

The fountain and trough stood in the intersection until 1937 when the city replaced them with a more modern concrete fountain to celebrate Victoria's 75th anniversary of incorporation as a city.

What happened to the horse trough no one seems to know.

The newer fountain was removed in the early 1960s when the intersection was realigned to cope with the heavy traffic. At last report, archivist Helmcken says, it was still lying in the city's Garbally Road works yard.

The intersection itself has an interesting past. For many years it has been known as Humber Green, after pioneer brickmaker Maurice Humber whose kilns were nearby on Douglas.

He lived on Gorge Road near the intersection, and the century-old brick house at 610 Gorge Rd. East, which was the family home, is still standing.

If your interest has been aroused by some feature of Victoria — or even some oddity — write to Wondering, Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas.

Timothy Padmore turned eight today. He's celebrating his birthday at home but it could easily have been in the bush of East Sooke Park.

Timothy, along with his 10-year-old sister Joanna and a friend, Jason Wale, 8, were the object of a four-hour search Sunday by 60 volunteers after they went missing during a family hike.

The three were rescued by Bill Smith of Becher Bay Road, Sooke, who fell 20 feet down a cliff in the process, hit a tree, lost one tooth and loosened three others.

Joanna also fell down the cliff but her fall was stopped by a bush. She received a few cuts.

Timothy's parents, Eric and Frances Padmore, had taken the youngsters, plus their 13-year-old son James and two other friends, Ken and Vincent Cummings, on a hiking trip when the trio wandered away and became lost about 4 p.m in the Babbington Hill area.

"We couldn't find each other, it was very windy," Padmore said today.

He searched the area until it was dark. By this time the others had returned to the car and raised the alarm.

Padmore left the search only long enough to find somebody with a light who could guide the way for the two of them.

The RCMP organized a ground search with the 38-strong rescue team from the Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific as the main pivot, supplemented with volunteers from the Sooke area. Sadru Damji, college lecturer and team leader, said the RCMP asked them to take charge because they had carried out a night simulation search in the area about this time last year.

"Two students were purposely lost and they (the RCMP) knew we had the maps and complete data of the area," Damji said.

He said when Smith, who was accompanied by his two daughters, Heather and Lorna, and a neighbor, Mrs. Louise Patterson, found the missing youngsters about 8 p.m., the main search party was only five minutes away.

In addition to the ground party, an RCMP helicopter from Pat Bay and another helicopter from CFB Comox searched the area.

In spite of his injuries, Smith was a happy man today.

"As long as the kids are okay, that's what counts," he said. "They were very cool-headed kids. They didn't panic a bit."

Smith and his party set out at 7 p.m.

"We kept shouting every 100 yards and we found them about 8 p.m. They were in perfect shape. They're real good kids," he said.

Padmore, too, credited the trio with using their heads.

"They were found not very far from where we had been. They had enough sense to stay put," he said.

As for Timothy, he now appreciates even more one of the birthday presents he received today.

It was a compass.

Saanich bid still interests RCV: Francis

A claim by Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier that the Racquet Club of Victoria was no longer interested in a purchase offer from the municipality was strongly denied today by Don Francis, president of the company which holds the property and facilities on behalf of shareholders.

Couvelier said today he will recommend the matter be made public after an in-camera meeting tonight.

"I no longer see any valid reason to consider the matter (an offer by the municipality to assume the troubled club's $850,000 mortgage debt) in-camera. It is no longer in the public interest."

Couvelier said he wants the matter discussed in public because there is "an internal split" in the club and the public should now be made aware of Saanich's previous negotiations and study on acquiring the recreation facility on Gordon Head.

The split, he said, became obvious in a reorganization plan pamphlet recently published by some members of the club which said, "we do not want to sell the (facility) to Saanich in exchange for assumption of the mortgage or whatever [illegible] offer."

But Francis, Racquet Club Holdings Ltd. president, said Saanich's offer is still active as far as he is concerned. He says the Racquet Club Society, which leases the building from the holding company, had asked for a deadline this Friday to raise the $200,000 it needs to make a purchase offer.

Francis doesn't think it can do it.

He said the board's executive will meet Feb. 5 to discuss three proposals and a recommendation will be placed before a shareholders' meeting on Feb. 19.

The Saanich offer will be considered, the society's plan and a proposal from a private developer in Vancouver.

Biker's condition stable

A 20-year-old motorcyclist who hit a curb on Kimta Road Saturday afternoon and lost control of his machine is in stable condition in Victoria General Hospital.

Victoria police said Dennis William Hoyt, of Work Point Barracks, was knocked unconscious in the spill, and his motorcycle was extensively damaged.

Still in Victoria General is Kim Alexandra Murray, 11, of 855 Villance. She has been in critical condition since being struck by a van and thrown against the back of another van stopped in a line of traffic on Finlayson near Glasgow last Wednesday.

Grace's ministry 'hard-hearted' on Langwood

By NORMAN GIDNEY

The Langwood workshop for mentally handicapped adults will be forced to close at the end of March unless there is a shift in the policy of "a hard-hearted ministry of human resources."

Dr. George Stocker, chairman of the Capital Region Association for the Mentally Handicapped board of directors, said the association can no longer carry the deficit for the workshop at 2724 Jacklin, established in the early 1970s.

Twenty retarded adults will be forced to remain at home or will be returned to an institution. Now, they attend Langwood from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and work on the workshop's planter box program. There are also programs in "life skill" development.

"It is a great shame that mentally handicapped citizens and their families have to pay such a high price for the policies of a hardhearted ministry of human resources," said Stocker.

The deficit for Langwood this year will be $33,000 — too much of a drain on the slender resources of the association, which runs another workshop at the former Sentinel school, 3861 Cedar Hill Crossroad, and several group homes for the mentally hndicapped.

"Forcing mentally handicapped adults to remain at home all day places terrible pressure on families and means that the quality of service available for some handicapped people returns to what it was 20 years ago," he added.

"It is indeed a sad comment that a government that brags about its surplus millions can't afford to provide even minimum services for retarded citizens."

"It appears that Mrs. McCarthy simply isn't interested in mentally handicapped adults."

He said the association wrote in October asking for a meeting with McCarthy and again in December, but there was no answer to either letter.

Her department now contributes 73 cents per hour for training for the handicapped, or $4.38 per day. The association's complaint is that the formula is too rigid and doesn't take into account the differing degrees of physical and mental handicaps.

"We just can't handle it anymore," said Ralph Vipond, executive director of the association.

In an interview about Langwood and the association's financial problem, he said the directors and staff are fed up, frustrated and angry with the provincial government.

He noted that deputy human resources minister John Noble announced on Friday the new budget for the centre, but this was for the 1979-80 fiscal year. For 10 months the centre has had to exist on loans and what money it could generate on its own.

"It makes it impossible to plan, impossible to do anything," said Vipond.

Noble also said there would be no decision on Langwood until later this year, when the department budget had been reviewed again.

Vipond said for years the Sentinel workshop, which trains less handicapped adults, has carried the Langwood workshop. To continue would mean cutting the pay for the mentally handicapped who produce saleable items at Sentinel.

Hundreds left off the voters' list

Hundreds of local voters have been left off the list because of a lack of enumeration, federal election officials said today.

As a result, returning offices are twice as busy as they were last time.

The problem, said Victoria chief returning officer Eleanor Allan, is there was no time to do an enumeration this year and hundreds of addresses have been changed during the past eight months.

An enumeration had been done in April for the May federal election and there were few problems but the same April enumeration is the basis for the Feb. 18 election and many people have moved in the past eight months.

"I would say change of address accounts for 90 per cent of our revision work."

Voters have until Feb. 4 to get on the voters list in city areas and until Jan. 30 in rural zones. Rural polls have special provisions allowing people not on the list to vote on election day under a special declaration but there is no similar provision for city areas.

Those who are not sure if they are on the list should come in person to 1837 Fort for the Victoria riding, between 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. or between 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. The stations are open Monday to Saturday inclusive.

For Esquimalt-Saanich, the revisions are taking place during the same hours at the Esquimalt Rec Centre at 527 Fraser, Garth Homer Achievement Centre at 813 Darwin (for urban Saanich) and the Sanscha Hall for Sidney.

Anyone in rural polls in Central Saanich or North Saanich who is not on the list could phone 477-4911 for information on how to get registered.

In Cowichan-Malahat the urban centre for revisions of the voters list is at Langford Fire Hall at 2775 Millstream. It is open from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from 7 p.m. til 9 p.m. on weekdays.

Rural poll revisions in Cowichan-Malahat are done through polling clerks. Information can be obtained by phoning the chief returning officer at 746-5722.

In Vancouver about 15,000 voters cards were sent back to Ottawa as undeliverable.

Most had wrong addresses due to the long delay between enumeration and election day.

Vancouver's main post office shipped a 45-kilogram fibreglass bin full of undeliverable voters cards back to Ottawa this week. The week before they sent back a 14-kilogram sack.

Since there are about 250 cards in a kilogram, this means at least 15,000 eligible voters were not correctly registered when the cards were mailed in mid-January.

The mix-up is a result of the sudden election call which followed the defeat of the Progressive Conservative's budget Dec. 13.

Boat people sponsors lacking

By BRENDA DALGLISH

The flow of Indo-Chinese boat people into Victoria may slow down in the next few months because of a lack of sponsors, says Stu Beveridge of the Refugee Aid Centre.

About 180 refugees have come to Victoria, Beveridge said, and about the same number are still expected.

The aid centre at 417-620 View was organized last year to assist groups interested in sponsoring refugees. It's affliated with the Inter-Cultural Association of Greater Victoria.

In all, Victoria has 81 groups who have applied to sponsor boat people and about half have received the refugees.

Beveridge, who with Janis Kirker staffs the centre, said only one new sponsoring group has applied since Christmas.

Only two of the refugees who wanted to work — which includes the men, most of the women and the older children — have not been able to find jobs, he said. One of them is a young man who spent several years in a refugee camp and has no work experience.

"They want to get as many incomes as they can to help them get established in their new home," he said. "Women tend to work seven or eight hours a day at a job and then tend the home while the men work at a regular day job and then in the evening go to second job."

There have been no incidents of serious illnesses or disease, considered a possibility before they arrived, he said.

Only three groups have not carried through with their plans to sponsor refugees. Two backed out of their commitment for personal reasons and one was dissolved by the government for unknown reasons, Beveridge said.

Generally the refugee families consist of two or three children. However, Beveridge said, some groups are sponsoring greater numbers of people, often extended families.

Beveridge said he hopes the sponsor groups, about 60 per cent of which are church-based, have gained solid experience at establishing refugees and will assist more.

"There are about 5,000 sponsoring groups in Canada and they're experienced at doing something very valuable. I hope we'll make use of that experience," he said.

Beveridge said there are more than a million people in the world who need settlement in a new home.

Canada is one of only 15 countries willing and able to provide resettlement, he said

MERIT AWARD from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been made to (left to right) Kent Moss, John Walker and Trevor Moss who rescued young deer from icy waters of Langford Lake earlier this month. Boys saw a dog chase the deer onto the partially frozen lake and when it went through the ice, they set out in a rowboat and rescued it.

Dental plan tops with employees

TORONTO (CP) — Group dental insurance continues to be the fastest-growing employee benefit in Canada, as shown by a 1979 survey of group insurance benefits for non-union salaried employees in the private sector.

The survey, conducted by the Wyatt Co., a Toronto-based actuarial and employee benefit consultant firm, covered benefits available to 700,000 salaried employees in 410 companies in most business sectors. Wyatt conducted a similar, but smaller survey in 1976.

Consultant R. W. Noxon said that 59 per cent of the surveyed companies provide a dental insurance plan, compared with 22 per cent in the smaller 1976 sample.

And, he said, many companies which already have such a plan are considering expanding the plan's coverage.

He said more companies are considering plans offering automobile, life and residential insurance to their employees at preferred rates.

Carter guns-and-butter policy inflation spur?

By LEONARD SILK
New York Times

NEW YORK — What are the economic implications of President Carter's State of the Union Address, which stressed his planned responses to the challenges of growing Soviet military power, the Western world's overwhelming dependence on Middle Eastern oil and unrest in the developing world, exemplified by the revolution in Iran?

In committing United States policy to meeting those challenges, without curtailing domestic programs, Carter runs the risk of pursuing a guns-and-butter policy that could increase inflationary pressures on the American economy.

The full measure of those stepped-up pressures may not be entirely evident in the budget for the 1981 fiscal year, which the president will present next week. According to informed sources on Capitol Hill, the new budget will show only a slow increase in defense outlays in the coming fiscal year, since the faster rise in defense authorizations will go largely for procurement of new weapons with long lead times.

Nevertheless, as defense contractors get their orders, they will be borrowing against them at the banks to assemble the machinery, materials and personnel they need. Hence the impact on the economy is likely to come faster than the natural rise in Pentagon spending.

Even with a relatively slow rise in military outlays, total federal spending is now going up rapidly. Just two months ago, at the time of the second concurrent budget resolution of Congress, total federal outlays were stated at $547.6 billion the current fiscal year, which ends Oct. 1. Now, spending for the 1980 fiscal year is estimated at $566 billion by the Congressional Budget Office, with many factors including inflation and policy decisions pushing up expenditures.

Receipts have also been rising, but not as fast, and the budget deficit, which was estimated at $29.8 billion last November, has now climbed to at least $40 billion. Congressional budget sources are putting the deficit for the current year at $44 billion.

President Carter made only brief mention of his budget plans in his State of the Union Address, saying, "First, we will continue to reduce the deficit and then to balance the federal budget." The budget for the 1981 fiscal year is now expected to show outlays of $616 billion, a figure that would not reflect the full impact of the military buildup but that would still be $50 billion higher than the currently estimated 1980 total, and $82 billion higher than the 1980 budget the president originally sent to Congress a year ago.

The budget will show few cost savings. The main one will be in Federal pay, under the guise of so-called pay reform.

However, Carter's new budget for the 1981 fiscal year is expected to show a significant cut in the size of the deficit. This is currently estimated for next year at $16 billion, a figure that excites some skepticism on Capitol Hill. How is this relatively low deficit to be achieved by the administration? Essentially from three factors:

—From the inflow from the new "windfall" profits tax on oil companies, which House and Senate conferees have now set at $227.3 billion over the next 10 years. But no agreement has yet been reached on how those extra "windfall" taxes will be fed back into the economy. Delays in the feedback could give the administration extra net revenues in the coming year.

—From scheduled increases in Social Security taxes.

—From the higher revenues resulting from inflation, which moves taxpayers into higher income brackets. Since Carter has proposed to suspend any tax cuts for the 1981 fiscal year unless and until a recession develops, rising tax revenues are expected to create a "fiscal drag" on the economy.

As a result of the above elements and economic recovery later this year, total budget revenues would have to rise to $600 billion in the 1981 fiscal year from an estimated $517 billion this year to reduce the deficit from more than $40 billion to only $16 billion. Congressional budget experts are currently estimating the revenue figure, however, at only $585 billion, which would imply a deficit of $30 billion, even if there is no faster spending buildup, such as the one that occurred during the Vietnam guns-and-butter period.

Will the result again be inflationary? In his State of the Union Address, Carter said, "As we continue to work with business to hold down prices, we will build also on the historic national accord with organized labor to restrain pay increases in a fair fight against inflation." In this week the administration accepted and appeared likely to approve a labor-business guideline that pay increases should average 8.5 percent but could be as high as 9.5 percent without violating the pay standards.

Barry Bosworth, the former director of the Council on Wage and Price Stability, who is now back at the Brookings Institution, was telling his colleagues this week that those who had in the past respected the pay guidelines, such as Brookings scholars, could get 10.5 percent pay increases this year. The base rate of inflation appears to be moving up.

Company reports

Mobil Corp.

Mobil Corp., the second-largest oil company in the United States, has reported that its 1979 earnings were $2.01 billion (U.S.), up 78 per cent from 1978.

Mobil said its revenues during the year climbed 28 per cent to $47.9 billion from $37.3 billion during the previous year. The company, which owns the Montgomery Ward retail chain as well as Mobil Oil, said per-share earnings during the year rose to $9.48 from $5.34.

During the final three months of the year, Mobil said its earnings rose 72 per cent to $541 million on revenues that rose 36 per cent to $14.5 billion. Earnings per share climbed from $1.49 to $2.55 during the quarter.

General Foods

General Foods Corp., the largest domestic coffee processor and a leading producer of packaged convenience foods, reports a 24-per-cent decline in profits for the three months ended Dec. 29.

Earnings dropped to $52.5 million (U.S.), or $1.05 a share, from $69 million, or $1.38 a share in the same period a year before, partly because of a drop in earnings from its Pop Rocks and Cosmic Candy carbonated candies.

The company said that the products showed strong sales following their introduction as novelty items, but demand later fell.

Sales during the third quarter of fiscal 1980 rose 10 per cent to $1.5 billion from almost $1.4 billion for the similar quarter in fiscal 1979.

Lower earnings in worldwide packaged convenience foods and an umfavorable effect of two cents a share in foreign currency translations, compared with a gain of eight cents a share during the third quarter of fiscal 1979, also contributed to the change, said James L. Ferguson, General Foods chairman and chief executive officer.

C & E Trust

Central and Eastern Trust Co. has reported a profit of $7,553,000 for the year ended Dec. 31, up 14 per cent from $6,646,000 for the previous year.

Earnings per share in 1979 were $1.41, compared with $1.24 in 1978.

Northern Telecom

Northern Telecom Ltd. has reported consolidated earnings of $183.8 million for the year ending Dec. 31, 1979, compared with $145.7 million for the year ending Dec. 31, 1978.

Quarterly earnings were $52.7 million for the three months ending Dec. 31, 1979, down from $55 million for the same period in 1978.

Sales for last year were more than $1.9 billion, up from more than $1.5 billion in 1978. Last quarter sales in 1979 were $515.2 million, up from $484.1 million in the same period in 1978.

Earnings per share were $3.70 for 1979 and $1.06 for the last quarter of 1979, up from $3.55 and $1.03 for the same periods in 1978.

The company said in a statement that its effective tax rate declined to 23.8 per cent for 1979 compared with 34.6 per cent for 1978.

Northern Telecom's net research and development expenditures increased 35.6 per cent to $132.6 million from $97.8 in 1978.

Denison Mines

Denison Mines has reported a 1979 profit of $56 million, down 3.7 per cent from record earnings the previous year due to increased production costs for uranium.

The major mining corporation reported 1979 revenues rose 15 percent to $310 million.

Chairman Stephen B. Roman said the company had record expenditures of $261 million in 1979 and he expects Denison to make "sizeable outlays" this year on new plant and equipment and resource development.

Whonnock

Whonnock Industries Ltd. has reported a 300-per-cent increase in net earnings for the year ended Nov. 30, 1979, compared with the previous year.

Net earnings jumped to $22.9 million or $7.82 a share, compared with $7.6 million or $2.60 a share the year before.

Sales in 1979 reached $190.8 million, up 57 per cent from the $121.4 million in 1978.

BM-RT Realty

BM-RT Realty Investments has reported its profit for 1979 slipped to $11.2 million from $12.4 million in 1978. Income for the fourth quarter amounted to $2.7 million. The company attributed part of the earnings drop to escalating interest rates and reduced spreads "which discouraged growth in mortgages and new financing."

Gulf Canada

Gulf Canada Ltd. had net earnings of $273.8 million or $6.02 a share in 1979, up 46 per cent from $186.9 million or $4.11 the previous year, the company has reported.

The 1979 figures do not include a non-recurring gain of $14.2 million of 20 per cent of Gulf's interest in the Syncrude project to Alberta Energy Co. Ltd.

Net revenues were $3,057.4 million, up $473.7 million from 1978.

The company also said it plans a record capital and exploration program totalling $1.2 billion this year. It gave no details of this program.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

I was playing with one of my favorite partners, Jeff Rubens, when this hand came up. It was Deal No. 2 of a 100-board match to determine whether or not our team would represent the U.S. in the 1973 world championship.

Rubens was South and got to three notrump. Ordinarily, he plays his cards in deliberate style, even though he is one of the fastest thinkers in the game. But on the present occasion he played the hand very quickly.

West led the king of hearts, ducked by South, and continued with the jack, won by Rubens with the ace. He promptly played the jack of diamonds and finessed. East took the queen and returned a club.

Rubens thereupon showed his hand and claimed the rest of the tricks on a double squeeze! The only explanation he offered was that he assumed East had four or more spades, which in turn meant that the double squeeze was sure to succeed. The opponents conceded the claim and the hand was not even played out!

They realized that Rubens would win the club with the king and cash the A-K-Q of spades and A-K-10 of diamonds to produce this position:

West

East
♠ 10
♣ Q 10

South
♣ A 6

The lead of the diamond four would first squeeze East out of a club, South throwing a spade, and then squeeze West out of a club to put an end to the proceedings. Rubens' claim at trick four was simply a time-saver!

Spousal talk not admissible

VANCOUVER (CP) — A phone conversation between spouses, even if intercepted in a lawfully-authorized police wiretap, cannot be entered as evidence in a criminal trial, county court Judge Lee Skipp has ruled.

The judge's ruling was made in respect to a phone conversation between former radio openliner Ed Murphy and his wife.

Murphy and businessman Douglas Holme are charged with conspiring to offer a bribe to former environment minister Jim Nielsen for help in removing 80 acres of land from the provincial agricultural land reserve.

Conversations between the two accused, obtained by police from wiretaps installed on their telephones, was to be entered today when the trial resumed, but Skipp rejected a request by prosecutor John Hall to tender as evidence a conversation between Murphy and his wife.

The judge ruled that since a person's right to refuse to testify against his or her spouse is included in the Canada Evidence Act, a wiretap of any conversation between husband and wife is inadmissible evidence.

Nielsen, now minister of consumer and corporate affairs, testified earlier he was never offered a bribe by either man. He also revealed to the court that police tapped his office telephone without his knowledge.

Hall said the Nielsen wiretap is not part of his case and the circumstances in which the tap was authorized will not be entered in evidence. Legislature speaker Harvey Schroeder has said he is studying whether the bugging of Nielsen's office phones by RCMP was a breach of parliamentary privilege.

During the legal argument over admissibility of the Holme-Murphy conversations, an RCMP officer said police had authority to tap Murphy's phone for almost one year and Holme's for nine months.

In testimony Friday, Gary Runka, former chairman of the B.C. Agricultural Land Commission, said it would not have been possible for Nielsen alone to sanction the removal of the land from the reserve.

He said any request to have land removed would have to go through municipal and regional district levels before it went to the nine-member commission, which Nielsen was responsible for. The commission then would have to hold a hearing.

The trial continues.

Lynn Patrick, Torchy Peden die on same day

Saturday was a sad day for those who remember Victoria's sports heroes of four decades ago.

Lynn Patrick, 67, who left Victoria to attain all-star status in the National Hockey League, died of a heart attack in St. Louis a few hours after William (Torchy) Peden, 73, former world professional bicycle-racing champion, succumbed to cancer in Northbrook, Ill.

First coach and general manager of St. Louis Blues when they entered the NHL in 1967, Patrick had retired from active executive duties with the club two years ago, spending most of his time at his converted farmhouse home near St. Louis.

Lynn, a winger, had his most productive NHL seasons between 1940 and 1943. He tied for second in over-all scoring totals during the 1940-41 campaign, was again second on the point list while winning the goal-scoring title with 32 tallies and earning selection the the all-star team the following year. He was fourth on the points list with his best-ever total of 61 in 1942-43, when NHL schedules were much shorter than they are today.

No details have been announced for Patrick's funeral.

The Victoria-born Peden competed with Canada's cycling team at the 1928 Olympic Games at Amsterdam, won every national amateur title the following year and then turned professional.

His exceptional endurance and determination carried him to the pinnacle in the then-popular six-day events. By 1934 he had become the acknowledged king of the six-day racers; breaking the world record for career victories, previously held by Dutch star Piet van Kempen.

In a remarkable career that continued until 1948, Torchy rode in 148 of the gruelling six-day grinds, finishing with 38 triumphs, a record that survived for 31 years.

Twice a coach with Canadian Olympic teams and a charter member of Cabada's Sports Hall of Fame, Peden had been a resident of Northbrook for many years. Services will be held Wednesday at the Hanekamp Funeral Home in Northbrook.

Lysne, Johnson in bowling 'hall'

Wilf Johnston and Vera Lysne, a pair of Victoria bowlers prominent on the lanes as well as in the promotion department, have entered the B.C. Bowling Hall of Fame.

They were inducted, along with eight bowlers from the Mainland, at the annual bowling awards banquet Saturday night in Vancouver.

Lysne, a Victoria resident since 1941, twice won the Victoria women's fivepin championship and also twice won the B.C. singles. She is a life member of the Victoria Fivepin Association.

Johnston, 67, a bowler since 1931, has been secretary of the Victoria Senior Tenpin League for 47 years. He has been a member of several city championship teams and also won the Victoria singles title twice.

Lysne was presented with Outstanding Achievement awards by the Bowlers Association of B.C. in 1969, 1971, 1972 and 1977.

Both Lysne and Johnston have been deeply involved with youth bowling in recent years.

Title for Andrie

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — Top-seeded Howard Broun of Calgary beat Steve Lawton of Richmond 3-0 Sunday to win the $2,000 Western Canadian singles squash championship.

Broun, errorless throughout, won 9-0, 9-0, 9-1.

Earlier, Broun eliminated fourth-seeded Ian Paton of Calgaru 3-0 and Keith Durling of Richmond by the same score.

In the women's final, Andrie Levey of Victoria survived a marathon battle to defeat four-time Canadian champion Jane Cartmel of Vancouver 9-6, 8-10, 0-9, 9-6, 9-2.

Boxing triumph

Cliff Ballendine of the Victoria Athletic Association Boxing Club hammered his way to an impressive victory Saturday in the 119-pound class at the B.C. Emerald Gloves meet in Richmond.

The 14-year-old, B.C.'s Golden Boy in 1979, also was runner-up for the tournament's Emerald Boy honor, won by Greg Laboucane of the Sullivan Boxing Club.

Another VAA boxer, Gary Robinson scored a pair of hard-fought victories over more-experienced rivals before losing in the semi-finals at the Seattle Golden Gloves tournament. The 16-year-old passed up the Emerald Gloves tournament to participate in Seattle as a member of the B.C. team.

Capitals hope they have it

By The Canadian Press

Whatever momentum is, Washington Capitals knew they needed some and now figure they've got it. And Toronto Maple Leafs are hoping it may be swinging their way but the frustated Vancouver Canucks are still waiting.

The Capitals, in search of their first playoff berth after failing to qualify for post-season play in their first five years of existence, set National Hockey League and club records Sunday while smothering New York Islanders 7-1.

The Capitals now are unbeaten in three games and have lost just once in their last five.

And among Sunday's nine games, Toronto beat Vancouver 5-2.

Ryan Walter scored two goals and assisted on three others for the Capitals, who now embark on a road trip which will see them play seven of their next eight games away from home. Which is why they figure they need momentum.

Goals by Mike Gartner and Bengt Gustafsson in the first 30 seconds of the second period, the two quickest ever at the start of an NHL period, got the Caps rolling.

But coach Gary Green contends the momentum actually began Saturday, when Washington had to settle for a 1-1 tie after outshooting Quebec Nordiques 40-16.

Two more by Walter and the first of Paul MacKinnon's NHL career gave Washington a club-record six goals in one period.

In Vancouver, the Maple Leafs played with a little more drive and determination and Darryl Sittler thinks he has the answer for the sudden change in attitude.

Sittler and linemate Terry Martin each assisted on three goals as the Leafs ended a disastrous seven-game road trip with the win over the equally-frustrated Canucks in the result which stretched Vancouver's winless string to 10 games.

"Having so many different wingers in the last few weeks has really affected my play," said Sittler. "That, and using four forward lines lately. Tonight we went back to three lines and I was much more into the game for a change."

Sittler's usual linemates, Dave Williams and Wilf Paiement, are injured, along with goalkeeper Mike Palmateer. Netminder Paul Harrison played a steady game for the Leafs, stopping 29 shots, but was not tested that severely by the punchless Canucks.

Sittler said he expects the Leafs to try and make a trade for him this week, although he has a no-trade clause in his contract. Any deal to another team must be approved by Sittler.

Two city rinks and a neighbor curling winners

Rinks skipped by Tim Horrigan and Brad Clarke provided Victoria with a sweep of the two Vancouver Island men's berths in the Pacific Coast Curling Association championship while neighbor Glen Harper saved the "local" flavor for the provincial senior men's finale.

Harper and his Duncan rink of Ralph Fulford, Howie Valleau and Bob Wilkinson scored a dramatic, come-from-behind 6-5 victory over Des Deroche of Vancouver Marpole at the Esquimalt Sports Centre on Sunday to capture the PCCA's seniors' championship.

The Duncan foursome thus faces Jake Block of Smithers in a best-of-three series for the B.C. title. The seniors showdown gets under way at 6:30 tonight at the Sports Centre with the second game at 2 p.m. Tuesday and the third, if required, at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Harper, former B.C. men's champion, trailed Deroche 4-1 after six ends. The Duncan rink tied it with a three on the seventh, blanked the eighth and then stole two on the ninth.

But Harper didn't get out of the woods until Deroche missed a last-rock takeout attempt. Deroche attempted to take out a Harper [illegible] second counter, in a bid for three and victory. The Vancouver skip wrecked on a front end guard.

Winners of the Harper-Block series will represent B.C. in the national finals at St. John, N.B., March 9-14.

Clarke and Horrigan picked up their tickets to the PCCA finals at New Westminster next month by topping an eight-rink Island playoff at Campbell River.

Clarke, third Bill Foster, second Doug Benedict and lead Jeff Owens captured the first Island berth with a 6-5 victory over Horrigan in the "A" final.

Horrigan and his rink of Lowell Goulden, Kelly Horrigan and Dave Smith bounced back Sunday with an easy 11-2 victory over Gary Wright of Duncan in the "B" final.

Wright reached the "B" final with a 5-4 victory over Neil McDermid of Campbell River late Saturday.

Erratic road to victory

SAN DIEGO (AP) — "I thought I had it won on 17, then I thought I had lost it on 18," Tom Watson said.

Neither happened as the three-time Professional Golfers Association player-of-the-year had to go to an extra hole Sunday to subdue D. A. Weibring in a sudden-death playoff and win the Andy Williams-San Diego Open golf tournament.

The playoff, which Watson won with a two-putt par against Weibring's bogey on the first extra hole, was more or less routine. But little of the rest was.

Watson had a wild series of adventures in the cool, breezy weather. He had started the day with a two-stroke lead, later trailed by three, again led by two, was tied, led again, then tied.

The last lead was established on the 17th hole. Watson's 40-foot birdie putt paused, tantalizingly, on the lip of the cup. It sat there for a couple of seconds while Watson turned his back in disgust. Then it dropped, sending Watson leaping into the air and scampering around the green.

But he gave it back on the par-five 18th, missing a three-foot second putt for a bogey to set up the playoff.

Weibring fired a spectacular, seven-under-par 65 that included a birdie-eagle finish to finish with a 13-under 275 total. Watson had a 70 in his windup round.

Two Canadians finished in the money. Dan Halldorson of Shilo, Man., won $1,101 by finishing with a 72 for a 287 total, while Dave Barr of Kelowna had a 75-296, good for $507.

Cougars have Fuhr so Hawks get less

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Hockey goaltenders' main aim is preventing goals. The fewer the better, they say.

The chant in the Victoria Cougar dressing room Saturday was "Fuhr was better."

The play on words, however, still couldn't do justice in praising the play of Grant Fuhr. Victoria's 17-year-old rookie netminder was the scene-stealer who sparked the Cougars to their important 5-2 Western Hockey League victory over Portland Winter Hawks.

Vocally supported by 4,392 fans — the largest turnout of the season at Memorial Arena, the Cougars moved three points ahead of Portland in their battle for the Western Division lead, a struggle that will continue when the teams meet again Wednesday in Portland and back in Memorial Arena next Saturday.

Fuhr made 40 stops, 28 in the first two periods when he supplied the glue that held the team together until his teammates got untracked. Among the 28 were at least five — by Tim Tookey, Brian Shaw, Bart Yachimec, Ed Cooper and Florient Robidoux — that left the Winter Hawks, and the near-capacity crowd, shaking heads in disbelief.

Then, after Cougars overcame a 2-1 deficit and were ahead 4-2, there was one more. The final victim was Jim Dobson, with one minute, 15 seconds left.

They weren't saves accomplished because of fortunate position. Rather, they were the go-get-'em kind that are readily appreciated by the refined eye. Seemingly beaten, but somehow recovering, Fuhr went after the puck for his greatest stops.

Angela dashes to world record

TORONTO (CP) — Angela Taylor, warming up for what she hopes will be a trip to the Moscow Olympics this summer, established a world indoor mark for the women's 300 metres Saturday at an all-comers track meet staged in the Metro Complex at York University.

The 21-year-old Jamaican-born sprinter ran the 300 metres in a flat 37 seconds and en route surpassed the little used 300-yard mark with a hand-held clocking of 33.4 seconds.

Taylor bettered the old indoor 300-metre best of 37.4 held by West German Rita Wilden since 1975 and her time over 300 yards shattered the old electrically-timed 34.20 of Rita Bottiglieri of Italy in January, 1978.

Sports tonight

The first game in the best-of-three British Columbia senior men's curling championship gets underway at 6:30 at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

In hockey, Juan de Fuca Gulls take on Fuller Lake Flyers in a South Vancouver Island Junior "B" League game at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Local basketball action will be provided by a Victoria Senior "B" Men's League game between Ivy's and Western Equipment Juniors at 9 in Central Junior High School.

Television viewers have an opportunity to watch a college basketball game between Oregon State and Stanford at 8 on Channel 11.

National Conference has turned it around

Times News Services

"I can remember when we seemed to lose this one just about every year, too," said coach Tom Landry. "Well, now that we've got this one under control, it would be nice to get the same thing going with the Super Bowl."

The "we" Landry talked about is the National Conference. "This one" is the Pro Bowl — which the NFC won Sunday in Honolulu by beating the American Conference 37-27 in the National Football League's post-season all-star showcase.

Landry, head coach of Dallas Cowboys, had lost his first two AFC-NFC Pro Bowl encounters, in 1973 and 1974, when the AFC was busy winning three in a row. However, the NFC now has won three straight and six of 10 since the interconference series began.

It's about the only thing the NFC can seem to win with regularity," Landry added. "The AFC has won seven of the last eight season series (the eighth was a tie) and seven of the last eight Super Bowls, too."

AFC quarterback Terry Bradshaw, unlike a week earlier when he won most-valuable-player honors for his superb job of guiding Pittsburgh Steelers in their 31-19 Super Bowl victory over Los Angeles, wore the goat horns here by throwing two interceptions — both of which led to NFC touchdowns.

"Players don't come here to win; they come here to play," Bradshaw said with a shrug. "It's not that important."

But it was very important to Chuck Muncie and Archie Manning of New Orleans Saints and the rest of the NFC stars. After all, $5,000 is not something to be ignored. That's how much each winning player received, twice what each loser got.

Elsewhere in the world of sport:

Sweden's Ingemar Stenmark, hot favorite for the slalom gold medal at the Lake Placid Olympics, Sunday hit peak form with a masterly victory in a World Cup slalom at Chamonix, France.

Stenmark, third after the first leg behind Italian Piero Gros and Alexander Zhirov of the Soviet Union, put in a perfect second run down the 75-gate course with its relatively gentle 180-metre drop to win by 18-100ths of a second in two minutes, 1.18 seconds.

Yugoslavia's Bojan Krisaj, skiing with a suspected broken left hand, finished second in 2:02.34 while Austrian Christian Orlainsky, 17, was third in 2:01.60 and Peter Popangelowy of Bulgaria finished fourth.

In speedskating, Canadians Gaetan Boucher, with 155.885 points, and Kathy Vogt, 175.330, won the men's and women's four-event sprint combination respectively at an international meet in Davos, Switzerland.

In figure skating, East Germany's reigning champion, Anette Poetzsch, beat back another challenge from West European contenders and took her fourth straight European title at Goteborg, Sweden.

West German champion Dagmar Lurz, who has been runner-up to Poetzsch the last three years, found the pressure too much for her, missed a couple of triple jumps and once again came in second. Italy's Susanna Driano finished third while Astrid Jansen of Toronto, competing for her native Netherlands, finished 18th.

In football, Bob Lilly, Herb Adderly, Deacon Jones and Jim Otto have all been named as the 1980 selections to the Pro Football Hall of Fame. They will be inducted into the game's Hall in Canton, Ohio, in August.

And in tennis, top-seeded Jimmy Connors, showing no evidence of the groin pull that plagued him all week, ousted second-seeded John McEnroe in five sets 6-3, 2-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-4 to win an unprecedented third straight singles title in the U.S. pro indoor tournament at Philadelphia.

Rowing's Weiler named top coach

OTTAWA — Rudy Weiler of St. Catherines, Ont., who guided the Canadian women's rowing eights to a gold medal at the world championships in Moscow last summer, has been named Canada's amateur coach of the year for 1979.

He was presented with the award at a banquet here Saturday.

Runners-up in the voting were Harvey Stevenson of Victoria and Lyle Sanderson of Saskatoon. Stevenson coached Victoria Budgets to a gold medal in softball at the Pan-American Games while Sanderson guided Diane Jones Kohihowski, the Pan-Am pentathelon gold medalist.

Weiler collected two first-class tickets to anywhere in the world serviced by Air Canada and $300 spending money. The runners-up each received two economy tickets to anywhere Air Canada flies.

Wrestling official Mike Eurchuk of Edmonton was named official of the year and field hockey's Nancy Asuma of Vancouver was selected as executive of the year.

Late Duncan offerings Aid Athletics, Mestons

Two players from Duncan, who transferred just before the deadline on Jan. 1, helped a pair of Victoria clubs in the first division of the Vancouver Island Soccer League to victory Sunday.

Pat Smith figured in all the scoring as Victoria Athletics tripped Nanaimo 3-1 at Heywood Avenue Park and Kerry Cleaver counted the winner as Meston's Auto Body nudged Castaways 2-1 at Blanshard Field.

In other matches, Victoria West maintained a slim hold on first place with a 2-0 shutout over Oak Bay at Topaz Park and runner-up UVic Vikings kept pace with a 2-1 decision over Powell River Villas at UVic.

Gorge and Cosmopolitan Royals played to a scoreless deadlock Saturday at Royal Athletic Park.

Smith set up George Pakos for a first-half goal and then scored at the 70-minute mark. Ray Telford connected for Nanaimo at 81 minutes and Athletics' Dave McCaig finished off scoring four minutes later on a penalty shot after Smith was pulled down in the penalty area.

Cleaver headed in the winner at 83 minutes on a pass from Tiberio Frias. Mike Farrell counted the other Meston's goal and Ian Courtize scored a lone first-half goal for Castaways.

Dan Henry and Steve Forslund scored for Wests, who dominated the match so completely that goalie Jim de Goede wasn't really tested in recording the shutout.

Mickey Morris scored to give Vikings a 1-0 lead at half time and Bob Dlamini put them two up soon after the break. Duncan McDougall hit for Villas late in the game.

GREATER VICTORIA SCHOOL DISTRICT

A little dab will do ya

The topic is make-up application; the course is beauty culture and hair styling at S. J. Willis Jr. High. Teacher Mrs. Sherrie Boyte advises Grade 10 student Brenda Remenda. This is one of six special courses in the school's Vocational Career Program, aimed at providing practical exposure to a variety of occupations. Others are horticulture, auto-body repair, child care, automotive maintenance and catering. (John [illegible])

How to see student file

Schools everywhere keep records of pupil performance, aptitude and behavior. In Greater Victoria, parents and older students have access to these files.

As well, our schools guard the confidentiality of the documents.

There are two — sometimes three — types of record maintained on every child. Most familiar is the report card.

A second is the Permanent Record card, known as the PR card to teachers. This is a cumulative record of the child's progress through the grades; it travels from school to school with the student.

PR cards record yearly achievement in each subject.

School Board policy 5125.1. says:

"The Board directs that care must be exercised in the maintenance and transfer of pupil records.

"It is essential that schools should be able to provide sound reasons for the collection of any data, and should have sound procedures to ensure the confidentiality of these records."

References to aptitude scores and any behavior problems are obliterated two years after the student leaves school, or at age 21, whichever is sooner.

If a student or parent wants a copy of the information for a prospective employer or post-secondary school, all that's required is a written request to the former school.

If the student is still a minor, a parent must write the request.

Sometimes a third type of record is kept for children who have learning difficulties or behavior problems.

Pupils in junior and senior high school and their parents may see the information "in the presence of a counsellor teacher who is qualified to interpret" the contents of the file.

After a studejt leaves school this file may be destroyed on request of the student or parents. They may witness the destruction.

In any case, such files are destroyed two years after the student leaves school.

Come and be heard

The public is welcomed at regular meetings of the Greater Victoria School Board, held in the Board offices, 3128 Foul Bay Rd., at Lansdowne.

Meetings schedule

The Greater Victoria School Board holds its regular meetings at 8:00 p.m. on the second and fourth Mondays of the month, except in August and December. There are no regular meetings in August, and in December the Board meets on the third Monday only.

Questions to the Board

If you wish to question the Board, the opportunity arises at the beginning of each meeting then visitors are invited to speak. No pre-arrangement is necessary. Questions are limited to five minutes each.

Delegations

A more formal approach is by delegation. This is a preferable method when you have a brief to submit; there is no time restriction. However, appearing by delegation requires notification to the Secretary-Treasurer by noon of the Wednesday preceding the meeting. The Board receives delegations at the first regular meeting of the month only.

Shape your school

Decentralization of the school system in recent years encourages parents to work directly with their principals in deciding local school rules.

Just as there are school laws for the entire province, and local policy for the School District, individual schools have the right to make their own rules.

The Greater Victoria School Board's Policy 5131 says:

". . . it shall be the policy of the Board to authorize the principal of each school to develop appropriate rules for the school to which he is assigned.

"It is expected that these rules will reflect the expectations of the community served by the school.

"It is further understood that any student or parent is free to appeal any rule or its application first to the principal, and then to the Superintendent or his delegate, and if necessary to the Board of School Trustees."

It's required that before going to higher authority with a problem, the parent first seek to resolve it with the principal.

If there were a basic rule of home-school communication, perhaps it should be: don't wait for problems to develop. Establish a relationship with your child's school by attending parent meetings and getting to know the staff.

Another School Board policy (No. 6155) declares:

"Whenever possible, parents should be free to send their children to one of several schools, each of which is unique in one or more particular ways.

"To make this possible, principals and teachers are encouraged to work with the various parent groups in developing variety in the schools of the District.

"Variety is especially encouraged in matters of philosophy, organization, curriculum and discipline."

District 61 boundaries open, but:

After a period of experimentation with an "open boundary" policy the Greater Victoria School District has compromised.

In years gone by, pupils were obliged to attend the nearest school. In the Seventies the Greater Victoria School Board made it a free choice.

For a number of reasons, some schools began to empty out while others became crowded. The Board was faced with pressure to build addi- [illegible] parts of the District while classrooms stood vacant elsewhere.

Today the policy amounts to this:

All children within a school's boundary are guaranteed places in the school. If there is spare room, outsiders are welcome.

Deciding how many pupils a school can comfortably accommodate is the job of the School District administration, ratified by the School Board.

Each school is assigned a rated capacity and staffed accordingly.

Beyond that, it's up to the principal to decide how many incoming transfers to accommodate.

Parents wanting to transfer children should give notice before May 30. Obtain a transfer application form at the child's present school.

Attendance boundary maps are on file in every school, and at the School District offices.

Although School Board policy is to allow as much freedom of choice as possible, it has the legal right under the Public Schools Act to assign a pupil to any school in the District.

Curriculum is sex-blind

Boys and girls have equal opportunity to enter industrial education and home economics courses in Greater Victoria School District.

This has been the policy of the Ministry of Education for some years now, and has been supported by the School District. Superintendent Allan Stables has emphasized the point with this statement to all District principals:

"At every level there can be no course or program entry based on special qualifications of sex, religion, race, etc. . . .

"Entry to Home Economics and Industrial Education must be open to all. Where prerequisites are required, these shall be only the prerequisites determined by the Ministry and listed in curriculum guides."

New Start, an alternative program for adolescents, needs volunteers. If you are able to tutor an individual student once or twice a week for two hours, please call Mrs. Eleonore Blaauw at 385-9512.

Active support of home and school groups is the policy of the Greater Victoria School Board.

How parents organize is up to them and their principals; parent committees are encouraged but not mandatory.

Here is the complete text of the Board's Policy 1219 on parent committees:

"The Greater Victoria School Board urges and expects principals to foster and encourage parent committees in schools.

"The Board recognizes the worth of many forms of parent participation in school life, such as informational meetings and auxiliary support. Additionally, the Board believes that consultation with parents is a desirable and necessary part of a complete school program.

"The Board accepts the following responsibilities in support of parent committees:

(a) Provision of School Board personnel to assist parents and staff to understand educational developments within the Greater Victoria system and any other assistance that may support and promote parent committees.

(b) Provision of nominal financial assistance to committees to help defray expenses, such as:

—incidental mailing costs

—stationery

—publication of newsletters.

(c) Assistance to committees through training and related resources to enable them to work more effectively.

(d) Provision of in-service for principals and vice-principals to aid them in promoting effective parent committees."

The School Board's Community Relations Office is responsible for supporting and encouraging home and school groups. For more information, phone 592-1211, Local 214.

Ad hoc group designed for special task

Most parent-school associations are geared to deal with one [illegible] business only. The Greater Victoria School Board has also provided a means of dealing with problems which may affect the entire District: the community advisory committee.

The special-purpose, short-term committee is a channel of public input into School Board affairs.

Here is the entire text of the School Board's Policy 1220:

"The Board may authorize formation of ad hoc community advisory committees focusing on specific issues concerning education within the School District.

"The purpose of the advisory committees shall be to inform the Board of the educational wishes of the whole community.

"An advisory committee may be initiated by the Board, or by the Board at the request of the community through a significant expression of interest in any educational topic.

"The composition of an advisory committee shall be determined by a constitution ratified by the Board. An advisory committee shall include representation by one member of the Board. It should also include representation from the public, students and professional educators.

"Professional educators shall not comprise a majority of any advisory committee.

"The Board shall provide supportive services for advisory committees.

"An advisory committee shall be responsible to the Board, and shall make an evaluative report to the Board."

Everyone has 'Right to Know'

The "right to know" was local law in the Greater Victoria School District 10 years before the federal government moved in the same direction.

This is the School Board's policy on public information:

"The Greater Victoria School Board declares the right of citizens to full, objective, and timely information, and the obligation of the School Board to provide such information about its programs and policies.

"To the greatest reasonable degree, affairs of the Greater Victoria School District are considered public unless specifically declared confidential.

"Those matters ordinarily to be dealt with confidentially include personal reports on staff and students, property and contract negotiations, law enforcement, and situations requiring protection of the legitimate interests of the community."

The intent of the policy is to create the greatest possible openness consistent with the effectiveness of Greater Victoria School District employees.

The public has the right of access at any reasonable time to any document which has been presented before an open meeting of the Greater Victoria School Board, or before an open meeting of a standing committee. The same right of access applies to any School District document printed by statutory requirement.

All policies and regulations of the Greater Victoria School District are considered public documents. Copies are freely available through the Community Relations Office (592-1211, Local 214).

French driver collects first Grand Prix victory

The 31-year-old driver took over the lead from Renault team-mate and compatriot Jean-Pierre Jabouille soon after the half-way stage of the 40-lap race and finished ahead of the Lotus driven by Elio De Angelis of Italy.

Australian Alan Jones, winner of five of the last seven Grands Prix, including the opening round of the 1980 world championship in Argentina two weeks ago, nursed his Williams into third place. The effort left him four points clear of Arnoux in the title battle.

Frenchman Didier Pironi was fourth despite a pit stop in his Ligier, followed by the McLaren of brilliant young compatriot Alain Prost.

Italian Riccardo Patrese gained his first championship point of the season by finishing sixth in his Arrows.

Moments after Arnoux finished, his turbocharged car sputtered to a halt with its petrol tanks empty. It was Renault's second championship triumph. Jabouille won the French Grand Prix last July.

Gilles Villeneuve of Berthierville, Que., who took his Ferrari into the early lead was forced out by engine problems. His team-mate, world champion Jody Scheckter of South Africa also failed to finish.

Vikettes roll along

University of Victoria Vikettes are continuing their steamroller act in the women's basketball league of the Canada West University Athletic Association.

Nobody expected the Vikettes to lose their latest CWUAA outing, a clash with the University of Saskatchewan Huskiettes Saturday at UVic, and the Victorians casually displayed their expected excellence.

With Sue Shaw and Carol Turney-Loos each connecting for 18 points, the Vikettes crushed the Huskiettes 81-47 for their 12th straight CWUAA victory.

The Vikettes extended this season's over-all record to 27-0 Sunday at UVic with an 84-64 exhibition triumph over Seattle C-Baskets.

Turney-Loos, with 35, and Luanne Hebb, with 26, both produced their highest-scoring games of the season to spark Vikettes.

On Saturday, UVic Vikings also performed without danger of defeat. Getting 21 points and great first-half rebounding from Billy Loos and 16 points from Eli Pasquale, the Vikes demolished the Huskies for a second successive night. This time it was by a 92-50 count although the UVic crew was shooting a season-low 37 per cent from the floor. In rebounding, Victoria had a huge 72-35 edge.

There was also some morale-boosting news for the Vikes, who are 10-0 in league play this season and 13-5 over-all. Reni Dolcetti, out of action for five games because of differences with coach Ken Shields, has been reinstated. He will be in the lineup when the club visits Edmonton next weekend.

HUSKIETTES (47) — Sheila Brennan 14, Marge Wihack 11, Shelly Ready 8, Sheryl Kleckner 6, Nancy Popoff 3, Sandy Menely 3, Sharon Kleckner 2.

Polite applause for Soviet athletes

PORTLAND — Brent Fougner of Victoria won the triple jump with a record leap of 50 feet, 10 inches during men's events at the Portland indoor track and field meet Saturday.

The feat was also a personal best for Fougner.

Cathy Darcy of the University of Victoria also came up with a an impressive effort. She collected a victory in the two-mile run with a time of 10 minutes, 49 seconds.

Three-time Olympian Madeline Manning-Mims pulled away from fellow American Kathy Weston with 240 yards to go to win the race in 2:31.2 while Weston finished in 2:31.7.

Soviet pentathlete Katya Smirova sprinted away from an outmatched field to win the women's 60-metre high hurdles.

Spectators applauded politely — none booed or jeered — as the Soviet athletes competing in the meet were introduced.

After her race, Smirnova said through an interpreter that she could not understand a proposed U.S. Olympic boycott.

"I don't understand how they could mix politics and Olympics," she said. "Athletes don't want it. The Olympics is a sport holiday."

The Oregon meet was the first stop on a five-meet U.S. tour for seven Russians.

"We've been treated very good," Smirnova said when asked how the Soviets had been received during their stay in Portland. "Americans are very nice.

Gymnastics triumph

BURNABY (CP) — Umi Mordre of the National Academy Club in Eugene, Ore., won three of four individual events Saturday to win the girl's over-all title at an international gymnastics meet.

DAWSON CREEK — Members of the Esquimalt Speedskating Club, who will host the North American championships in Victoria's Memorial Arena in March, fared well in the B.C. outdoor championships here at the weekend.

In addition, Reg Parsons finished second in the bantam boys; Greg Thormoe was second in the juvenile boys, and Greg Klassen finished fifth in the junior men's division. NEW TRAX 12
ALL SEASON RADIAL
from Firestone®

With the new all season TRAX 12 from Firestone, you're through changing tires as often as the seasons. The revolutionary multi-purpose tread of TRAX 12 will eat up just about any driving condition the weatherman throws at you. Plus you get the ride comfort and road-handling stability you expect from radial tires. TRAX 12 is a polyester radial – strong, flexible and impact resistant.

Put a set of TRAX 12 radials on your car today. Then let the sun shine, the rain pour and the snow fall.

TRAX 12 is the weather-teasing, owner-pleasing, all season radial from Firestone.

SPRING
Your TRAX 12 has open shoulder slots to channel water out the tread when driving on rain-soaked roads. This greatly reduces hydroplaning and provides better contact between your tires and the road.

SUMMER
The computer designed tread pattern of your TRAX 12 has a dividing center rib to keep your tires running quietly, even at highway speeds on hot summer roads.

FALL
The roads may be dry and hot one day and snow covered the next. That's okay. Your TRAX 12 radials may be better prepared for sudden changes in the weather than you are.

WINTER
Your TRAX 12 has tapered shoulders and interlocking deep groove lateral Z-bar cleats for positive traction in mud and snow and slush.

Aussie side hits trouble

ADELAIDE (Reuter) — Australia's batting buckled under the pressure of West Indies four-pronged pace bowling attack on the second day of the third cricket test Sunday.

After West Indies, 303 for eight overnight, was all out for 328, Australia battled grimly to 201 for nine and looked to have little chance of pegging back the touring side's 1-0 lead in the three-match series.

CHECK THESE NEW BENEFITS AND OPTIONS FOR AUTOPLAN '80

It's getting close to renewal time for Autoplan insurance. The deadline is February 29th for the majority of B.C. motorists.
Although rates are up by 10% because of increased costs, individual premiums may increase or decrease because of changes in ICBC's rating structure and the introduction of Phase I of the F.A.I.R. program.
Your Autoplan insurance for 1980 also features some new built-in benefits for everyone and some new options you should consider for your personal protection when you renew.

CHANGED COVERAGES

1. INCREASED LIABILITY COVERAGE
Like everything else the cost of settling bodily injury claims continues to rise. So, for your greater protection, we have increased the compulsory minimum for Third Party Liability insurance to $100,000 from $75,000. For the nine out of 10 motorists who carry more than just the minimum coverage, there will be no extra cost.

2. INCREASED NO-FAULT ACCIDENT BENEFITS
Recognizing the higher cost of living, a number of no-fault accident benefits are being increased.
- Weekly benefits increased to $100 from $75.
- Dependent benefits increased to $25 from $15 a week.
- Funeral expenses increased to $1,000 from $750.

3. SAFE DRIVING VEHICLE DISCOUNT CHANGE
A major change in the discount program came into effect last September. It waives the earlier requirement that drivers in British Columbia had to be insured under Autoplan for six months before they became eligible for a Safe Driving Vehicle Discount. Now, the discount can be applied without the waiting period and it is based on the owner's previous claim record. A one-year claim-free record earns a 15% discount; two years earns 25%; three qualifies for 32½%. This change principally benefits people buying an additional vehicle and new residents to the province.

NEW COVERAGE

INVERSE LIABILITY COVERAGE
In some U.S. states and Canadian provinces, your right to recover costs for damage to your vehicle through the courts is legally prohibited when a resident of that state or province is at fault in the accident. This new Autoplan feature, which is included as part of your basic coverage at no extra cost to you, provides for payment of your collision damage cost to the extent that you are not at fault for the accident.

NEW OPTIONS

1. UNDER INSURED MOTORIST COVERAGE
For an additional premium you can now extend your protection to cover accidents where the insurance of the driver at fault is not sufficient to cover claims for bodily injury and death. If you are the victim of an accident, and you carry this option you are protected to the limit of your own Third Party Liability coverage.

2. SUPPLEMENTARY NO-FAULT ACCIDENT BENEFITS
If you feel the current disability and death benefits offered under the No-Fault Accident Benefits schedule are insufficient to cover your needs, this option allows you to buy a higher level of benefits for an additional premium.

AND THE F.A.I.R. PROGRAM STARTS

Autoplan '80 will also introduce Phase I of the F.A.I.R. program.
The premium you pay may be affected by one or more of these changes:
- Sex and marital status will be removed as rating factors. This will mean a decrease of about 30% in the average premium paid by male vehicle owners or principal operators under 30 years of age.
- The first step will be taken towards removing geographical location as a rating factor. As a result, premiums will increase in some territories and decrease in others.
- The Safe Driving Incentive Grant will be discontinued because the young, single, male drivers who received this grant will benefit more from the new lower premiums
- An additional premium is no longer required for an occasional operator under 25 years of age.

If you have any questions, consult your independent Autoplan agent, or your Motor Licence Office. Be sure to pick up your Motorist Kit when renewing your insurance. It contains a handy pocket to protect your insurance and registration documents, useful information if you have an accident and details of Autoplan insurance for 1980.

Renew early and take time to discuss the new coverages and your requirements with your agent.

Tom Morlin walked to the town hall of Amber (population 110), arriving right on schedule for the Republican presidential caucus.

No one else showed up, so at the appointed time of 7:30, Morlin called himself to order, polled himself on his choice for his party's presidential nomination, then telephoned in the Amber vote to the Jones County convention.

Morlin, who cast his vote for Rep. Philip M. Crane of Illinois, who finished fifth in the straw vote, adjourned himself after the lonely two-minute meeting and went home.

Dear Abby:

I can certainly sympathize with Frustrated. I am 68 years old, 5 feet 1, weigh 210 pounds and have been a widow for five years.

From my description, you know I am not exactly a glamor-puss, but would you believe that these dumb wives have the nerve to be jealous of me and the dried-up prunes that are their husbands?

Women I've known all my life dropped me like a hot potato when I became a widow. I don't think I come on too strong and I certainly am no threat to anybody's marriage.

My husband was a handsome, friendly "kissing bug." He always hugged and kissed my girlfriends who were divorced or widowed, but I always invited them to our parties, and we all had a great time.

I say the wives are paranoid! Don't they realize that they, too, could become widows with the blink of an eye?

Thanks for letting me blow off some steam, Abby. I hope other widows will write to you.

Lone Dumpling

Dear Dumpling:

They did. Read on:

Dear Abby:

I can't believe that you called Frustrated in Arizona "a touch paranoid."

What do YOU know about what a widow or divorcee has to put up with? You have had no experience along that line, and I pray you never do.

I am 72, and have been both a widow and a divorcee in the last 10 years. It is absolutely true that married women are jealous of their husbands in the company of single women. And you should see some of those old crocks. Believe me, I wouldn't have one for a gift!

Alone and Satisfied

Dear Abby:

I think you owe Frustrated in Arizona an apology. Widows and divorcees are not "paranoid" -- there is very real antagonism against them.

I moved to Phoenix 15 years ago as a 37-year-old divorcee, having previously lived in Cincinnati, New York, San Francisco and Cleveland, and I can't begin to tell you how shabbily I was treated! I just stopped going to parties where there were married people.

Phoenix has fewer eligible men than any city I've ever lived in, which makes it wonderful for married men. They do pursue, hence their wives are leery of every unattached female, and with good reason. But it's not very pleasant for the unattached female.

In Phoenix, the wives are friendly as long as their husbands aren't around. Talk about paranoid -- it's the wives, not the single women, who are paranoid!

If Frustrated is living in one of the retirement communities, she'll find more widowers than widows. Sun City is called "Sin City" by the locals. That should tell you something!

Not Paranoid

What have they done with Dan's gift?

Today I would like to tell you about Dan Matijevich, a British Columbian unknown to fame during his lifetime, but notable in death because of one arresting circumstance. Big Dan, a logger for 50 years, left a princely gift to the people of this province.

His full and proper name was Mijat Dane Matijevich. He came to B.C. from his native Yugoslavia as a bull-strong young man, impelled by the dream of a richer, more spacious life.

What he found was work in the woods. As a logger, Dan traded from one camp to another up and down the coast until age and a painful back ailment exiled him to Vancouver. There he took a room in the Arco Hotel on the skidroad, where he lived out his retirement.

Dan Matijevich was a basic, simple man. He neither smoked nor drank. There is no evidence of any liaison with a woman. During his active years, he had each month salted away a portion of his earnings. Now, in retirement, he continued to bank 50 per cent of his pension money.

In July of 1974, Dan turned up in the West Georgia Street offices of Brown, Benson & Fiddes, barristers and solicitors. It was time, he announced, that he put his affairs in order. He wanted to make a will.

So the cut-and-dried business of making a will proceeded. Executor named . . . all just debts, funeral and testamentary expenses to be paid . . . and so on, and so on.

Then came the bequests of which Dan Matijevich had only one: and at this point, the lawyer stiffened in his chair. Here, from Dan's will, is how he chose to dispose of his life savings.

"I give, devise and bequest unto the Government of the Province of British Columbia for its own use absolutely and forever all my property, both real and personal, of every nature and kind, wheresoever situate, of which I am seized and possesed.

"I have lived and worked and earned my money in British Columbia for many years and I hope that this gift may help other people in British Columbia. I am grateful for the living I have been able to earn in this Province."

A year later, Dan Matijevich departed this life at the age of 75. He left, 'to help other people in British Columbia', an estate amounting to $141,697.65.

One grows cynically used to the image of government as a cow with an inexhaustible udder to be milked. It's refreshing to hear of someone who, to cite a great American long gone. "Asks not what his country can do for him, but what he may do for his country."

I wish I could end this screed on that note. But in the interests of concise reporting, I think we should follow that magnificent gift of Dan Matijevich's on its travels.

The $141,697.65 was turned over to the government by the lawyers on March 11, 1976. It was then absorbed into the limbo of the Consolidated Revenue Fund, where it remained dormant while the government decided what to do with Dan's gift.

University of British Columbia and British Columbia Institute of Technology came up with a suggestion. Obviously, old-logger Matijevich's gift should be applied to the basic industries which are the mainstay of this province. Why not set up a memorial fund, the interest from which would supply $500 training scholarships in perpetuity for young people seeking to enter forestry, logging, wood products fire control, fisheries, and wild life management?

UBC pointed out specifically that such scholarships would be a tremendous aid to third-year forestry students, many of them married, who face a staggeringly expensive program.

This suggestion went into the hopper with others.

Meanwhile, time passed. At the end of 1977, Dan's gift was still socked away in general revenue, with no plans for its disposition.

Finally in November of 1978 . . . more than three years after Dan died . . . an "appropriate" use for the funds was decided on. By order-in-council a warrant was drawn up turning the sum over to British Columbia Forest Foundation "to establish a B.C. Hall of Fame in a proposed Forest Centre, to honour those man and women who have been and/or contrive to be instrumental in making this industry such an important part of our daily life."

And there, to the best of my knowledge, the matter rests.

I can see that hall of fame . . . if it ever emerges from the realm of governmet pie-in-the-sky into reality . . . as a puffer-up of lumber magnate egos. But it taxes me to understand how, in the slightest degree, blowing Dan Matijevich's $141,697,65 on a hall of fame helps the people of British Columbia. And that, after all, was what Dan most specifically intended to do with his nest-egg.

I submit that the government of this province has most frivolously and shamefully trifled with Dan's gift. And I suggest that the disposition of that gift be reviewed with a more practical eye to giving help where needed.

Scholarships, yes. Hall of fame, be damned!

Hard living erodes life span

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The human life span has increased dramatically in the 20th century because of the spectacular success in controlling infectious diseases, but the next 20 years will likely bring little improvement, says an assistant director of the U.S. Centre for Disease Control.

The reason is that today's top killers are not infectious diseases but accidents, violence and chronic illness.

Future changes in human life span are going to have to come through changes in poor habits — drinking, smoking, stress and hard living, said Dr. Donald Millar of the CDC.

"Preventing deaths due to these problems will require the simultaneous reduction of several health risks over long periods of time, clearly demanding a much greater commitment by both the individual and the community," Millar said in an interview.

The improvement in life span since the turn of the century has been stunning. Studies show that a child born in the North America in 1900 could expect to live 47 years. Today, the average is 73 years. But the figures can be misleading.

"This dramatic increase of 25 years was achieved by reducing the risk of dying during infancy and childhood through environmental sanitation, immunization and improved nutrition," Millar said.

In that same period, life expectancy for adults increased only slightly. In 1900, a 45-year-old white male could expect to live to age 69. In 1976, a 45-year-old white male could expect to live to 73, only 4.5 additional years.

"The highly-touted lengthening of life span for North Americans is largely due to prevention, not cure," Millar said.

As an example, as late as 1960 epidemic poliomyelitis swept the U.S. every summer. By 1970, as a result of mass immunization campaigns, the incidence of poliomyelitis was almost negligable.

But other killers are on the loose.

One study listed the leading causes of death in the U.S. in 1976 as heart disease, cancer, stroke, influenza and pneumonia, accidents, car accidents, diabetes, cirrhosis of the liver, arteriosclerosis and suicide.

Most of those are brought about by social pressures and this is where any improvement in longevity span is likely to come in the near future, researchers say.

Some of the social problems which Americans are going to have to contend with are emphasized in the U.S. surgeon general's latest report on health promotion and disease prevention.

There are no weight loss shortcuts

By DR. L. L. COLEMAN

I'm overweight, a lot overweight. I get nowhere with diets. I even volunteered to have the stomach and intestine operation to lose weight. The doctor says, "No." Diet pills, when I can get them, are valueless. Where do I go from here?

Mr. F.T.E.

Dear Mr. E.:

Even though you think you have exhausted all possibilities, you really haven't. In your letter you make no mention of seeking psychological guidance for your compulsive eating. The stress and anxieties in your life have not been modified.

You are constantly seeking shortcuts to losing weight. Strangely, your shortcuts have taken you far afield and you have bypassed the realistic fact that your intake of calories is greater than the calories you need for daily activity.

Unless you understand this basic law of nutrition, you will never lose weight. If, on the other hand, you readjust your patterns of eating so that you consume fewer calories than your body requires for your daily activities, then you will lose weight.

There is only one exception to this fixed rule of nutrition. That is, if there is some thyroid or other hormonal imbalance that affects your weight.

Now, there is this bit of good news on the horizon. In West Germany, there are some interesting preliminary trials being made with a new compound that interferes dramatically with the digestion of carbohydrates.

The compound, known temporarily as BAY g 5421, seems to block the digestion of sugars and starches in the intestinal tract. The result is that these substances pass through the body undigested and unabsorbed. Consequently, there are no added calories when these foods are eaten.

Dear Doctor:

Our child was born with a deformed jaw. The baby is only 4 months old. We are hunting everywhere for the best advice as to what to do. We need all the help we can get.

Mr. and Mrs. S.K.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. K.:

Brilliant results in the reconstruction of the face after severe injuries or birth defects are now possible. Dr. John M. Converse, at the Institute for Reconstructive Surgery in New York, is an international authority in this type of dramatic reconstructive surgery. He believes that virtually all parts of the face and the skull can be repositioned.

A look at euthanasia

leslie holbrook

the fourth quarter

Euthanasia is a difficult word and mercy killing an unpleasant phrase sometimes used as a substitute.

Here I consider only passive euthanasia involving humane decisions to permit a terminally-ill patient to die with dignity and as pain free as possible.

The reasoning is that when suffering and indignities being inflicted upon dying persons are only prolonging the agony they should be allowed to pass along without vain attempts to keep them alive for a few more hours.

More and more people, including doctors, religious leaders and influential men and women from many walks of life now embrace this philosophy. An educational council called Concern For Dying has developed A Living Will reading as follows:

To My Family, My Physician, My Lawyer and All Others Whom It May Concern

"Death is as much a reality as birth, growth, maturity and old age — it is the one certainty of life. If the time comes when I can no longer take part in decisions for my own future, let this statement stand as an expression of my wishes and directions, while I am still of sound mind.

"If at such a time the situation should arise in which there is no reasonable expectation of my recovery from extreme physical or mental disability, I direct that I be allowed to die and not be kept alive by medications, artificial means or 'heroic measures'. I do, however, ask that medication be mercifully administered to me to alleviate suffering even though this may shorten my remaining life.

"This statement is made after careful consideration and is in accordance with my strong convictions and beliefs. I want the wishes and directions here expressed carried out to the extent permitted by law. Insofar as they are not legally enforceable, I hope that those to whom this Will is addressed will regard themselves as morally bound by these provisions."

The statement is signed, witnessed and copies given to those likely to be concerned.

Although headquarters for Concern For Dying are in New York City, over 500 Canadians already support the Council and an affiliated group is being set up in Toronto.

In the meantime, a copy of the Will and explanatory material may be obtained free of charge by writing Concern For Dying, 250 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y., U.S.A. 10019. The Council is a non-profit organization so if you want more than one copy a donation would be appreciated.

Concurrently with the growth of the Council "right to die" laws are being enacted. Since California led the way in 1976, at least seven other states have introduced similar legislation and 27 other states have bills under consideration. A related issue concerns patients' rights to be given facts about proposed treatment and to refuse such treatment if they wish.

With your copy of A Living Will the Council will send a "Question and Answers" brochure which should help you to decide whether or not you want to sign such a document.

Send comments and questions (long, stamped, addressed envelope for reply to The Victoria Times c/o Box 1506, Guelph, Ont. N1H 6N9.

Children overfed drugs

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto doctor says many general practitioners prescribe unneeded antibiotics for children to please parents who want instant cures.

Dr. Donald Stewart, director of the outpatient clinic at the Hospital for Sick Children, said Tuesday that up to 60 per cent of children brought to the hospital are on antibiotics they don't really need.

Stewart said parents often put pressure on doctors to prescribe "a quick, sudden medication " to fight an infection, and a doctor may decide that if he doesn't prescribe it, "someone else will."

"I suspect the parents have been taken in by the advertisements of drug companies who say their products will provide a quick cure."

A recent Winnipeg hospital survey showed more than one in three antibiotics given to children at one hospital in a single month were wrongly prescribed, and Stewart said a survey of Toronto hospitals would probably produce similar results.

"We are suspicious that precriptions are often given because of pressure (on doctors) from drug companies hailing their products as effective and safe," Stewart said.

They loved that stove

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Over and over again you read or hear of art shows set up in various galleries.

Not very often, if ever, do you learn of one arranged in a ground floor studio where sunshine streams in through a wide, low window, the floor slopes gradually down hill, laundry tubs are carefully screened in one corner and viewing space is centred by short stairs leading to the living quarters above.

Yet, that's the way it was when Alice Carey, a talented local artist, decided to show some of her paintings and sketches, in mid-December.

Since returning to Victoria 10 years ago from Michigan, where she was artist-in-residence at Mackinaw College on the island of that name, Miss Carey has taught young people and adults in that ground floor studio on Summit Avenue.

She has painted and sketched in Metchosin, at Shawnigan Lake, on the Saanich Peninsula, and along the west coast of Vancouver Island.

Recently she has been attending a portrait workshop in Queenswood House of Studies.

Nevertheless, as she tells it, whenever she thought of really getting down to serious work "the house, a garden and other family responsibilities crowded in and I found myself very discouraged."

Then, one day last year she happened on a few of her paintings and sketches that had been hidden away in a drawer for some time.

"Suddenly I seemed to look at them with new vision," she recalls," and instead of feeling dejected I was filled with a desire to get into real work."

Those she brought home, and when added to more recent efforts, so impressed two close friends they urged her to arrange a showing. They promised to help.

"That was the push I needed" Alice Carey says.

Old Monarch stove and Tango completed the picture

Students she was teaching asked permission to provide the cookies and serve tea.

When the time arrived, more than 100 art enthusiasts attended and there were enough sales, again as Miss Carey puts it "to more than cover the expense involved."

Although she speaks of an Irish and English background, Alice Carey says she was born into a family of three boys and three girls, in a small community about five miles from Claresholm, Alberta.

And that she came to Victoria with her family when she was eight.

Signs of her talent for drawing and painting came as a youngster attending Margaret Jenkins public school; then as a teenager at Sefton College, at Rockland Avenue and St. Charles Street, and later at Strathcona Lodge on Shawnigan Lake where she took lessons with a retired civil servant from China.

In her early grown-up years she lived with an aunt at Farnham in England's Surrey and attended college there.

The Second World War saw her active in Red Cross and Moral Rearmament work in England.

When the war was over she began to study art in earnest, first at Farnham Art School, then in courses at Wimbledon and finally at St. Martins on Charing Cross Road in London.

"There I worked with many different models and many different teachers," she recalls. "I also added portrait painting to my busy schedule. It was a tremendous experience!

"Finally I was accepted by the United Society of Artists, a branch of the Royal British Art Group, and that gave me the right to show in London, if I wished."

Alice Carey came back to Victoria in 1957, bought a house at George Road and Inez Drive, and for almost 10 years helped her sister Ruth to care for an ailing mother.

During that time she arranged two showings of her paintings, one at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria and the other at Cypress Gallery on Fort Street.

She also had shows at Vernon and Salmon Arm and, in connection with a summer course at Nelson.

"I took my paintings to those places by trailer, accompanied by a friend who insisted on going along to the Okanagan for ballast, and by two students who assisted me with the Nelson course."

Her appointment as artist-in-residence at Mackinac College came in 1966.

That continued until 1969 when she came back to Victoria, this time to stay.

Immediately she again went looking for a home of her own and she discovered the Summit Avenue place.

"It was a dreary, mustard color and shrouded in trees and shrubs when I first saw it," she remembers. "For starters it needed insulation, wall linings, extra windows and a ceiling on the ground floor.

"On the plus side it was on a hill, had wonderful views of the city and mountains, not much garden and plenty of wall space for my paintings in that ground level room."

As a bonus, the old iron cook stove was there in its corner, just as it had been for many years.

Alice Carey is professionally trained to work in oils, pastels, watercolors, pen and wash and acrylics.

She also does collages with tissue paper torn into stripes and carefully placed over certain paintings to give a soft, almost dreamlike effect.

Now that she is ready to go back to serious work, all these talents will be well used.

And you can be sure that the busier her brushes and her palette knives become, the more we will hear of her and the more we will see of her work.

In that ground floor studio on Summit Avenue, you ask?

Pensions 'legalized thievery'

QUEBEC (CP) — Company pension plans are often a form of "legalized thievery" because employees can lose heavily when they move to another company, says Louis Plamondon, legal adviser to the Association Quebecoise des Retraites, a retirement group.

Workers who leave a company often have to give up the pension plan contributions made in their name by the employer unless they're at least 45 years old and have worked there more than 10 years, Plamondon said in a recent interview.

In a recent year, only five per cent of Quebecers who moved to jobs at other companies were able to transfer their full contributions.

Liberals quash last debate hopes

OTTAWA (UPC) — The last hopes for a broadcast debate among the three federal leaders faded on the weekend with Liberal officials promising a formal statement rejecting the most recent proposal by Monday morning.

All proposals for a national radio debate among the leaders would be rejected in the statement, Trudeau aide Jim Coutts said Saturday in Halifax.

He said Trudeau would not be able to take time off from campaigning to participate in a debate proposed for Feb. 10. "Its getting too close to the day of the proposed debate to allow a change in his itinerary."

Trudeau, who spent most of the weekend in Ottawa, capitalized on opposition to the Conservatives' rejected federal budget by Ontario Tories in his only campaign appearance, a Saturday stop in Sault Ste. Marie.

Speaking to a meeting of party workers, the 60-year-old former prime minister said it was no dishonor for Conservatives to criticize the budget.

He quoted Ontario Treasurer Frank Miller as saying "election or no election, I'm not going to stop criticizing the government's proposed energy tax increases."

In Toronto, meanwhile, Prime Minister Joe Clark said Sunday his government would strongly condemn the Soviet Union at a spring conference in Madrid where progress in implementing the Helsinki human rights agreement would be reviewed.

ELECTION 80

"A Canadian delegation under our government will have firm and clear instructions to bring before that conference — in the strongest possible terms — the evidence of lack of compliance by the eastern bloc countries in the field of human rights," Clark said to the thunderous applause of his audience of 6,000 Canadians of Ukrainian origin.

"The people of Canada attach the highest importance to the human rights provisions of that accord — to the free movement of people and ideas and the basic rights of all people to live in the country of their choice.".

"Since the signing of that agreement we have seen a constant demonstration of the Soviet Union's unwillingness to live up to its commitment," the prime minister said. "The internal exile of Andre Sakharov is only the latest and most outrageous example of the Soviet determination to suppress dissent."

Also campaigning in Toronto, New Democratic Party Leader Ed Broadbent Sunday his party had not been able to nominate enough women candidates for the Feb. 18 election and conceded that there is resistence among some party members to women running for office.

Broadbent continues his campaign today in the Toronto suburb of Scarborough.

The New Democratic Party — a full week later than its gressive Conservative and Liberal rivals — opened its series of election television commercials Sunday with Broadbent featured.

The NDP commercials feature Broadbent explaining his party's policy on economic issues, with a minimum of production gimmicks. A spokesman for the advertising agency retained by the NDP said the party feels viewers are alienated by the Liberal and PC ads, and will regard the NDP approach as more responsible.

"Our objective, in the light of what the other two guys have been doing, is to put our guy front and centre. No camera work. No gimmicks. Just Ed, so we can give the viewer as intimate and direct a look at the guy as it is possible to give anyone."

Trudeau oil price policy popular with Alta. Grits

RED DEER (CP) — A Liberal federal government would hike domestic oil prices substantially but not as much as under a proposed Progressive Conservative government budget, Liberal energy expert Hu Harries said Sunday.

The long-awaited announcement by Trudeau takes Liberal pricing strategy out of limbo and gives candidates a strong platform on which to run, he said.

Harries was questioned by a reporter who suggested that under the Liberal formula the price would increase up to $7 a barrel.

While not denying the figure, Harries said under the Liberal plan the price, a blend of conventional, oil sands and imported oil costs, would not match total 1980 price increases proposed in the Progressive Conservatives' December budget.

The Conservatives have promised to implement the budget if returned to power in the Feb. 18 federal election. They say they would raise oil prices by $4 a barrel this year but would also impose an 4.5-cent-a-litre excise tax on gasoline which Harries said would amount to a further $4 per barrel rise in consumer prices for oil.

The Liberals have said there would be no excise increase if they form the government. Harries said the final price for domestically-sold oil would be a matter for negotiation with the provinces if a Liberal government is elected.

"Replacement costs would be above the cost that exists now," he said. "The timing of price hikes would also be negotiated."

Kramer vs. Kramer takes 4 Globes

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Living up to its billing as heavy favorite in the film award season, Kramer vs. Kramer won four major Golden Globes at the Hollywood Foreign Press Association's 37th annual awards ceremony.

Kramer vs. Kramer was named best dramatic film of 1979 on Saturday night and also earned awards for Dustin Hoffman as best dramatic actor, Meryl Streep as supporting actress and Robert Benton for his screenplay.

The film is about a New York City couple's battle for custody of their young son. In accepting his award at the Beverly Hilton festivities Hoffman commented on conflict of a professional nature.

"Awards are very silly," he said. "They pit very talented people against each other. They hurt the hell out of the ones who lose and relieve us that win."

Best new actress and actor honors went to Bette Midler, who made her screen debut as the neurotic pop music star of The Rose, and little Ricky Schroeder of The Champ.

In the comedy-musical categories, the best film award went to Breaking Away, a low-budget production about a high school graduate enamored with cycling. Peter Sellers picked up a best actor Golden Globe for his role as the dim-witted television addict in Being There.

Francis Coppola was a surprise winner as best director for Apocalypse Now, and he and his father, Carmine, shared the award for original score for the Vietnam epic.

Alice won awards for Linda Lavin as best actress in a television musical-comedy and Polly Holliday as supporting TV actress.

Watchdog Richards Report #154 Many many thanks to the Rotarian who invited Your City's Watchdog to hear Mrs. E. Morrison, Auditor General who spoke on the "Function of the Office of Auditor General" at last Thursday's luncheon. It also appeared to Your City's Watchdog that the majority of the members would be eligable for a Victoria Who's Who book. Your City's Watchdog and a Newspaper Reporter were asked to leave last Wednesdays City of Victoria Traffic Sub Committee meeting which was discussing the widening of Gorge Road. Alderman John Cooper informed Your Watchdog that it has been the policy of the City Traffic Sub-Committee to meet in private because some members of the Committee feel that they volunteer their time and do not wish to be quoted on any of their views or recommendations. It appears that all surrounding municipalities have their Traffic Committee meetings open to the public. Please continue to phone 383-6259 or write Your City's Watchdog C. Joe Richards, PO Box 154 for information regarding Municipal matters. Seen-in-passing: Don Straith driving golf balls into the early morning fog last Wednesday morning at the Victoria Golf Course. HOW TO WRITE

CLASSIFIED ACTION

AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room, etc., for rent, or property for sale; start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably by giving complete, definite information. Always include the price in your advertisement.

[illegible]—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8:00 to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Soviet defector sounds warning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Arkady Shevchenko, a high-ranking Russian official who defected to America in 1978, has warned Congress the Soviet Union has built "an ominous war machine" to destroy free nations and dominate the world.

Speaking in public for the first time since his defection, Shevchenko said Friday a U.S. boycott of the Moscow Olympics next summer would serve a good purpose because Kremlin leaders "consider the Olympics as recognition of the correctness of their policy."

As for the Kremlin's foreign policy, he said, there remains "an insatiable appetite of world domination ... An ominous war machine of immense proportions is now in existence.

"I once thought the Soviet Union was dedicated to disarmament, but I saw instead that it was engaged in an armaments program more rapid and intense than any since Hitler's armament of Germany before World War II," he said.

Shevchenko said detente to the Kremlin is simply a convenience to be cast aside when it gets in the way of "their final goal — destruction of the free world."

Shevchenko, 49, was No. 2 man at the United Nations for six years before his defection, and he served as personal adviser to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko for three years before that. He held the highest diplomatic ranking in the Russian system.

Shevchenko told a House intelligence subcommittee he went through an intellectual crisis when he realized the Soviet Union was not the freedom-fighting or free-thinking nation it professed to be.

"My intellectual journey began [illegible] create in me a convulsion akin to physical sickness," he said.

"I have spent most of my adult life as a member of the elite ruling class of the Soviet Union," he said. "I have had an opportunity to observe the Soviet system from its very top, and to study how it serves or disserves its people and the goal of world peace.

"I have also had an opportuinity to live for many years in the West and to study life in the western democracies. In short, I have an opportunity to compare."

From his vantage point as an $87,000 a year assistant to U.N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, Shevchenko said, he "slowly came to understand that the Soviet regime represents the antithesis of the ideals which it professes at home and abroad."

"I discovered that all power in the Soviet Union is in the hands of a restricted circle of party elite, top state functionaries and the KGB (secret police).

"I saw that democracy in the Soviet Union is a mockery, that the Soviet people have no free elections, no freedom of thought or opinion, no freedom of intellectual or artistic creation or expression, no freedom of religion."

Tugboat strike delayed

A strike which could tie up more than half of the tugboats on the B.C. coast could start later this week, a spokesman for the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers said today.

There was speculation last week a strike could have started today.

However, the spokesman, an official of the seamen's section of the CBRT, said the union has scheduled a meeting with the B.C. Federation of Labor later this week to inform the organization of its strike plans.

Until then, the union is not tipping its hand, he said.

The 550 deckhands, oilers and cooks in CBRT local 400 were eligible to strike today, after the rejection last week of a conciliation report by mediator Noel Hall.

Union representative Tom McGrath issued the strike warning on Friday at the end of an hour-long meeting with the Council of Marine Carriers, the employers' group representing the dozen affected tugboat companies.

They have accepted Hall's report although it goes beyond an earlier settlement with the Seafarer's International Union, which represents deckhands in about a third of the council's member firms.

Fund-raising deal raises eyebrows

The financial arrangement between former Socred MLA George Kerster and the B.C. Wildlife Federation is raising eyebrows at the legislature.

The federation has hired Kerster to use his government connections to push for a $93,000 grant from the provincial Sports and Physical Fitness Fund, with Kerster taking 10 per cent off the top as payment.

"I'm going to look into this," Provincial Secretary Evan Wolfe said Sunday.

The minister questioned whether government funds should be used for anything other than the purpose for which they are granted.

Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber calls the 10 per cent arrangement a joke but added: "It's a bit of an insult as well."

"Mr. Kerster has done no service at all to Social Credit by accepting such an arrangement and I'm not sure it does the B.C. Wildlife Federation any good either," Barber said.

He said the application for a grant should be judged on its merit and not on who's doing the lobbying.

As for Kerster's cut, Barber asks: "Does the lobbyist for the forest industry get 10 per cent of the stumpage rates in the province?"

Federation executive director Bill Otway said Kerster was offered a flat consulting fee but opted to accept 10 per cent of whatever he raises.

"If he gets more money, he gets more of a cut," Otway said.

Otway has taken leave from his federation job to run as Progressive Conservative candidate for Mission-Port Moody in the federal election.

Haul-out facility bid loses

DUNCAN — Attempts by several regional directors to revive a plan permitting a log haul-out facility in water calssified as a recreational zone has failed.

A motion for spot zoning that would have allowed the haul-out was defeated 19-6 at a meeting of the Cowichan Valley Regional Board.

Several directors have attempted to get approval for the application by Hidden Valley Sawmills to allow a haul-out along Mill Bay Road near Mill Bay. The proposal was met by objections from area residents at a meeting last June and the application was rejected by Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm.

Vander Zalm has indicated he would not object to spot zoning which would limit the site's use to the current lease-holder, but this would require another public hearing by the CVRD.

Director Leo Kutka moved "that the board proceed to spot zoning the area," but the motion was defeated.

Board Chairman Martin Lukaitis suggested the region's economic development officer, Austin Fraser, the region's economic development officer, contact other haul-out firms in the area to see if they would permit Hidden Valley to occassionally use their facilities.

Born on a farm in Manitoba, Scott was a graduate of the Western Pentecostal Bible College in Winnipeg. As a minister he travelled extensively in Canada, the U.S. and South Africa.

Rec survey in Saanich

He told the parks committee next phase of the study starts Jan. 31 and involves a survey of 1,200 households.

Nanaimo by-pass route opposed

They feel such a route would interfere with education.

They also contend the proposed four-lane bypass running close to Nanaimo District senior secondary school and Malaspina College would hinder any plans the schools have for co-operative programs.

Most of the trustees complained they have not seen the consultants' final report on the artierial route, released the previous week.

Board chairman Joy Leach opposed the route.

"Our role as trustees is to be protectors of the educational environment," she said. "If the preferred route goes ahead, the best thing we could do is sell our property to McDonald's because that's all it would be good for, a hamburger stand."

No official motion was made but the board left the door open to presentation on the route from the city. In addition, school district staff has written to city council seeking continuing consultation on the route.

Children's magazine folds

The Canadian Children's Magazine, founded three years ago by Victorian Evelyn Samuel, has ceased publication because of a lack of funds.

The magazine carried no advertising and paid its bills by subscription revenues and commercial loans.

It had 12,000 subscribers including children and teachers who used the magazine in classrooms across the country.

Samuel worked hard to save the magazine.

"Everything was tried. A proposal went to the International Year of the Child committee in Victoria but that was turned down by the minister (Grace McCarthy);" said Samuel.

Finally, Samuel decided to sell advertising in the magazine.

She came up with an acceptable advertising format but even that was too late.

"I failed to realize that major advertisers set their budgets and make their commitments a year in advance. If I had had enough money to carry on for a while, that might have developed into something that would make the project viable, but I had left it too late," she said.

The magazine didn't get government grants.

Samuel is trying to sell property in Alberta to help pay off the magazine's debt of about $100,000, and hopes to to revive the publication in a few years.

"It was really the only magazine of its kind in the country," said Samuel.

A service club in Victoria has expressed some interest in funding the magazine.

Samuel thinks if it was reformed as a foundation, so donations to it would be tax-deductible, corporations might also be willing to offer funding.

She regrets she hasn't been able to inform subscribers of the magazine's demise "but that alone would cost around $5,000 and that's money I just don't have."

Oleander: perfumed beauty

hilda beastall

Once having known the fragrance of the oleander shrub, anyone liking to grow plants will want to add one to a greenhouse or sunroom collection.

Fortunately this Mediterranean native is occasionally found for sale locally among semi-tropical plants, flowering here in late summer.

The perfume is difficult to describe without having it present, but it is remembered as rich with, I believe, a touch of spice, probably that of clove.

An ideal place for growing oleander in local homes is either in an attached solarium, or in a sunroom with glass on three sides. Artificial heat at night is best kept to a minimum, as for most ornamental semi-tropicals for winter — around 10 deg. C.

Although growing to large shrub proportions in southern Europe, oleanders are kept to four or five feet as boulevard plants in southern California. In tubs and large pots for Victoria homes their size is easily maintained at three feet or so by pruning. They flower on new shoots made the previous summer.

A young plant from a cutting takes two- to three-years to make a good-looking branched, flowering specimen. Flowers seen here are most commonly a deep rose, in clusters at the ends of branches. There are, however, pure white and deep red, not so often seen.

During winter indoors, the oleander should keep its narrow dark green leaves but not do very much growing. Water sparingly and give good light without high heat.

By late February or early March according to the season, repotting may be done but only if necessary. A young plant in a three- or four-inch pot may go into a four- or four-and-a-half-inch size.

A larger plant may need only some fresh soil, put into the same container whether a tub or pot. Just tap the plant with its rootball out of the container to see the condition of roots and soil.

By spring, mid-April on, moisture should be more constant in the soil, and syringing of foliage given when humidity is low. A soil rich in humus of compost material and very old cow manure will maintain soil moisture without too frequent watering which cools the soil. Warm country natives do not like frequent watering because of this effect on their shallow roots in cultivated soils.

As flower buds develop and begin opening, new shoots will be seen at the base of the flower heads. In pots, these should be nipped off at once for they hold back the opening of the full head.

A mature oleander with several flowering heads is a lovely sight, greatly enhanced by the pleasant fragrance. In this age of frequent and distant travel, many Victorians will have known this plant growing in outdoor settings. It can be grown indoors, if conditions suit it.

Give the oleander light, freedom from frost in winter, summer sun and heat, and a rich moisture-retentive soil in a pot or tub. It repays with many pink flowers grouped against dark green (evergreen) leaves and a fine rich perfume.

N.S. manpower office occupied

They say they will stay until Ottawa agrees to write off unemployment insurance overpayments to 5,058 Nova Scotians who have been asked to pay the money back.

Gary Berrill of Enfield, N.S., a spokesman for the group, said members are ready to occupy all manpower centres in the province to achieve their demands.

He said the next occupation would occur Tuesday.

Sleeping bags and coffee were carried in by the 20 demonstrators here.

Burrill said the overpayments were a computer error that gave people between $200 and $1,000 more than they were due. He said this was spelled out in a letter to each recipient involved.

He said no disruption of employees at the manpower offices was intended.

"But the Conservatives in Ottawa have left us no choice but to stay here as we will do in manpower centres across the province until the write-off is announced."

Recipients of the overpayments recently decided not to pursue a court battle further, claiming the issue was not what was legally correct, but what was fair.

Overseas operators boycott Bell calls

TORONTO (CP) — More than four million communications workers in 87 countries have been asked to boycott calls from Canada until the strike by Bell Canada operators is settled.

Stefan Nedzynski, general secretary of the Postal Telephone and Telegraph International, said in a telegram of support to striking Bell employees that the international union is calling on its affiliates to boycott calls handled by non-union personnel at Bell Canada.

Fred Pomeroy, president of Communications Workers of Canada, said the international union offered to boycott Canadian calls at Christmas and New Year's when the communications workers were on strike.

"We declined their offer because of the holiday season," Pomeroy said in a news release. "Since then, Bell has refused to accept the report of the government-appointed conciliation commissioner.

"We are up against the most powerful monopoly in Canada so we have asked the PTTI for support now."

The 174 unions in the 87 countries involved will be working on boycott procedures based on laws in their own countries and on their internal practices.

The strike by 7,400 operators and cafeteria workers began a week ago after a month of selective strikes, slowdowns and walkouts.

Bell and union negotiators were scheduled to hold a meeting today in Montreal.

But some Bell Canada managers filling in as operators were getting around the boycott by saying calls were coming from the United States or non-striking parts of Canada.

Jean McVeigh, Bell's assistant director of information in Toronto, denied that the tactic is sponsored by the company.

William Howes, a union representative, said he was unaware that Bell managers were misleading foreign operators.

"However, if the boycott is implemented, it is going to damage Bell. There is no doubt there is going to be a turnaround of revenue."

CP Rail wreck cattle killer

The train was rolling into town Saturday morning when the first car behind the locomotive, a cattle car, left the tracks, taking with it another cattle car and at least 35 other cars of the 76-car train.

The cars piled together like a giant accordion, all within the length of a football field.

Emergency crews on the scene tried to rescue the cattle but most of the animals were killed. Survivors that could walk were herded toward a nearby field across an icy highway. Six injured animals had to be shot by RCMP.

Earl Olson, a CP spokesman in Calgary, said the other derailed units included 20 piggyback trailers carrying a variety of goods, eleven refrigerator cars carrying [illegible], one car filled [illegible] flour, one filled with canned goods and two empty units.

He said the derailment will interrupt transcontinental passenger train service but that passengers will be taken between Moose Jaw and Medicine Hat by bus.

Seal hunt protest still strong

WASHINGTON (CP) — Foes of the Canadian seal hunt plan this year to give Canada "the loudest message it has ever received," says the president of the Animal Protection Institute of America.

In a statement from Sacramento, Calif., Belton Mouras said Canadian officials who believe protests are waning will be proved wrong this spring.

Mouras said his group will send staff members to the sealing grounds off Newfoundland in early March. Members also will try to persuade Americans to refuse to travel to Canada or guy Canadian products until the hunt is stopped.

Last year, the Fund for Animals called for a similar boycott and about 75,000 postcards supporting the idea arrived at then-prime minister Pierre Trudeau's office.

Mouras said he believes a significant number of Americans now refuse to travel to Canada, but he thinks the extent to which this is damaging the Canadian economy is "probably the best-kept secret of the Canadian government."

The institute also is helping to co-ordinate protests with other anti-hunt groups in the U.S. and Europe.

Residents are saying they may set up a reward for the capture of the child's killer and are considering ways to assist the child's grief-stricken mother, Evelyn, who is estranged from her husband and living on social assistance.

Kimberly's nude body was discovered in a garbage bag Friday in a southwest Calgary alley by two civilians involved in an intensive search for the child. Mrs. Thompson reported the girl missing Thursday after she failed to return home for lunch from her kindergarten class. School officials say she apparently did not attend class that morning.

Kathern Heidinger, a Calgary resident and mother of four, said she is prepared to volunteer her time to set up a reward for information leading to the conviction of the little girl's killer.

"I'll have to contact police first," she said. "But I'm willing to organize a reward fund and even start it off with a $50 contribution myself. I'm mad. I want to see that creep caught and put away for good."

KIMBERLEY
. . . didn't return

A spokesman for the Altadore-South Calgary Community Association said the group has also considered a reward.

"We've also thought about creating a memorial fund or collecting money for a substantial donation to the child's family," the spokesman said.

The girl may have been the latest victim of a man wanted since 1975 for at least 20 other sexual assaults on young girls, police said.

Staff Sgt. John Hubbard said Sunday a man, described as being between 17 and 22 years of age and "chubby and blond," was the prime suspect in the case.

The most recent previous attack was last November when a young girl was held at knifepoint in a garage.

S. Sgt. Roy Evans, in charge of the city police homicide division, said Sunday 28 officers are still working on the murder case full-time but would not say if they were making any headway.

An initial examination did not turn up the cause of Kimberley's death and Evans said an autopsy report was expected this week. Police say there were no fractures or obvious wounds.

Teachers shut Que. schools

MONTREAL (CP) — Threatened walkouts by 90,000 teachers and school maintenance workers forced cancellation of classes for almost one million Quebec students today, with hopes for an early settlement riding on round-the-clock negotiations in a Quebec City hotel.

By Sunday evening, several major school boards had cancelled classes until further notice, while others were telling parents to keep their children home if there wasn't a settlement by dawn today.

But chances of that were remote. Union leaders warn that if the talks fail, the strike by 90,000 teachers and support workers at French-Catholic and English-Protestant schools could turn into a long one.

"It could be hard and long," said Hubert Sacy, spokesman for the Centrale de l'Enseignment du Quebec (CEQ) early today in a telephone interview from Quebec City.

Little progress has been reported in bargaining since Friday, particularly on the key item of teacher workload.

The teachers' strike involves 65,000 CEQ members and 6,700 members of Provincial Association of Protestant Teachers. Ten thousand support and custodial workers, members of the Confederation of National Trade Unions, started their own strike Friday.

Several school boards say they have locked out their custodial staff until they settle, even if the teachers agree to terms first. More than 15,000 CEQ members respected the maintenance workers' picket lines Friday.

Instructors at six junior colleges were also set to strike Monday, with colleagues at 15 other junior colleges planning to follow suit later this week. English-Catholic schools are unaffected because their teachers signed a contract last year.

Carter boosts arms budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter today sent the U.S. Congress a 1981 budget totalling $616 billion that proposes major new spending for the military, while putting a partial lid on domestic spending.

Carter called it a "prudent and responsible" budget that "will prepare America for the new decade."

The budget claims to represent a reordering of the administration's priorities caused by armed Soviet intervention in Afghanistan and terrorism in Iran. But almost all the military increase was pledged several years ago to NATO allies, and the rest was announced last year to win Senate votes for ratification of the SALT II treaty.

"The uncertain and sometimes hostile world we live in requires that we continue to rebuild our defence forces," the president said in his budget message to Congress. "I cannot ignore the major increases in Soviet military spending that have taken place inexorably over the past 20 years."

The administration predicted a "mild recession" during the first six months of this year. Forecasting continued double-digit inflation, Carter said he is restraining domestic spending for 1981.

He proposed defence outlays of $142.7 billion, a 3.3-per-cent increase over 1980, which includes funds for a rapid deployment force for emergency dispatch to crisis areas like the Persian Gulf, as well as increased spending for NATO forces, the new MX ballistic missile, the bomber-launched Cruise missile and a new supertank.

There was also $10 million for the selective service system to begin registering young Americans for a possible military draft.

Though combatting inflation is a high priority, Carter abandoned his 1976 campaign pledge to balance the budget. With projected revenues of $600 billion falling short of outlays, there is a deficit of $16 billion. The 1980 deficit is projected at $40 billion.

Energy projects also got a big boost from the Carter budget. Outlays for the energy department would increase $1 billion to $8.7 billion to expand use of coal.

The budget, for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, must be approved by Congress, which usually makes significant changes. While spending is up $52 billion over projected 1980 outlays, the administration said $37 billion of that is required by existing law, such as cost-of-living increases in social security benefits.

IT'S WINTER AGAIN as sub-freezing temperatures of last week produced sheets of ice all over capital region. These young skaters Sunday took advantage of flooded fields, produced by torrential rains in December, off Interurban Road in Saanich. Weatherman said it got down to —5 Celsius Sunday and the forecast is for more Arctic weather, although there will be increasing cloud cover that could warm the air slightly but also could bring more snow by Thursday. A word of warning: Skaters should check with police departments to make sure ice surfaces have been declared safe before attempting to glide across them. Many favorite outdoor skating areas where water depth is more than a few inches are still considered hazardous. (John McKay photo).

West to lead growth

OTTAWA (CP) — More than 80 per cent of all economic growth this year will come from the Western provinces while Ontario and Quebec will contribute less than 10 per cent, the Conference Board in Canada predicted today.

After three years of decline, construction in British Columbia will return to a high level of activity in 1980 aided by the provincial government's mortgage interest subsidy program and major investments in non-residential building by mining and forestry companies.

Business in the service industry sector will also pick-up.

But the board also said mining and forestry sector output is expected to decline as poor housing markets in the United States limit provincial lumber exports.

"Last decade's tendency for the Canadian West to out-perform the nation as a whole will be carried forward into 1980, emphasized by a poor performance predicted for manufacturing industries," said the board's quarterly provicial forecast.

The independant research institute said production of manufactured goods is expected to decline by nearly three per cent nationwide and by almost four per cent in Ontario.

Its report said the motor vehicle and parts industries will be most affected by the slowdown but other producers of consumer goods will not escape unscathed.

Forestry, construction and the public administration sectors will also decline and over-all growth in Ontario will be restricted to only two-tenths of one per cent.

Clark threatens to cut off Olympic athlete's funding

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Clark has threatened to halt funding of Canadian athletes who want to go to the Moscow Olympics unless Soviet troops are out of Afghanistan in less than one month.

The funding withdrawal would be part of a Games boycott to force the Soviet army out of Afghanistan by Feb. 20, Clark said Saturday.

Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party leader, rejected Clark's idea. Broadbent said Sunday although he supported the idea of changing the site of the Games, he would not back a boycott.

Clark met officials of the Canadian Olympic Association in his Ottawa residence and emerged to announce his desire for the boycott unless the Soviet Union complies with the deadline.

The prime minister asked the association officials to take his position to a meeting of the International Olympic Committee at Lake Placid, N.Y., on Feb. 9.

Clark said he would first ask Canadian athletes to support a boycott, but unless the Soviet troops retreat the Canadian government will withdraw aid to competitors seeking to go to the Moscow Games.

Although reaction from some Canadian Olympic contenders was quick and critical, Liberal Leader Pierre Trudeau, who had earlier spoken against a Games boycott, reserved comment on Clark's announcement.

A Trudeau aide said Sunday the Liberal leader would include his position on the proposed boycott in a major campaign speech on foreign policy, likely to be delivered this week.

Athletes in British Columbia said the Clark boycott would not affect the Russians or the situation in Afghanistan.

"It really won't do that much unless maybe 80 per cent of the countries do it," said hammer thrower Scott Nielson of New Westminster. "If we stay away no one else is going to be hurt."

Meanwhile, closer to the Afghanistan crisis, six allied Afghan rebel leaders made a dramatic appearance before an emergency meeting of Islamic nations today to appeal for assistance in their bitter conflict against the Soviet invasion force.

The 36-nation conference meeting in Islamabad, Pakistan, also was expected to move within hours to expel the Kabul government from the 42-nation Islamic Conference organization.

Gold falling

LONDON (AP) — Gold prices were sharply lower again today, falling to $624 U.S. — about $726 Canadian — at the afternoon fix in London, down from $665.50 U.S. at the close Friday. The morning fix price in London was $629.

McKinnon lays plans for crisis

By AL FORREST

Canada has developed a contingency plan to add 16,000 more troops to its armed forces if they are needed to deal with the Afghanistan crisis, Defence Minister Allan McKinnon said here today.

He said Canada would be able to put a third infantry batallion in West Germany where it could go to the Middle East, if necessary, under NATO or UN command.

McKinnon said Prime Minister Clark directed him to prepare a study on the maximum force Canada can put under arms at this time.

"The study is complete," McKinnon said in an interview. "While some of the material is classified it includes an assessment that we could increase our forces in five figures, for a total of around 95,000."

The present Canadian strength is just und[illegible],300.

McKinnon said it would not be practical to try to get as many as 100,000 into the forces, even in an emergency, at this time because there would not be enough guns and uniforms for them.

He said Canadian forces would only go into the Middle East under united command through the UN or NATO.

"I'm sure we would go if called upon."

Canada had planned to increase its forces by 4,000 over the next four years, before the Afghanistan crisis arose. This schedule will be continued and is separate from the contingency plan.

McKinnon said all armed

California quaking

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Scientists are warning that northern Californians can expect more earthquakes following nine tremors in the last four days.

"Earthquake sequences of this type are relatively common," said Dr. Robert Uhrhammer, a researcher at the University of California Seismographic Station in Berkeley. "We think the sequence will continue for several days or possibly weeks.

"The others will probably be smaller and further apart in time."

The latest tremor rattled the Livermore Valley 50 kilometres east of San Francisco — site of Thursday's big earthquake — at 2:58 a.m. Sunday.

Fake doctor exposed, kills himself

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man known to residents of Alert Bay for [illegible] two months as Dr. Robert Rifleman was found dead of self-inflicted wounds Sunday at the RCMP lockup in Port Hardy on northeastern Vancouver Island.

RCMP Constable Paul Fox identified the man as Roberto Enrique Trujillo, 41, who was arrested Friday and charged with impersonating Dr. Robert Rifleman, a general practitioner now living in Wisconsin.

Trujillo was being held in the Port Hardy lockup until a court appearance Tuesday. He was also under investigation under the federal Immigration Act, RCMP said.

Events that led to Trujillo's arrest Friday began several weeks ago when a doctor and nurses at St. George's Hospital in Alert Bay became suspicious of the man's medical competence and notified the B.C. College of Physicians and Surgeons.

A college probe ended Friday when they learned the whereabouts of the real Dr. Rifleman and notified police and the hospital board that Trujillo was an impostor.

His licence to practise was lifted by the college, the hospital board lifted his hospital privileges and police arrested him. He was taken to Port Hardy, 40 kilometres northwest of Alert Bay.

Port Hardy coroner R.M. Koch has ordered an autopsy. No date has been set.

Alert Bay is the main settlement on Cormorant Island off the northeast coast of Vancouver Island, about 300 kilometres northwest of Vancouver.

Dr. J.A. Hutchison of the college of physicians and surgeons said Trujillo had several aliases and presented himself at Alert Bay last November as Dr. Rifleman with original documents supporting the claim.

"We subsequently found he'd stolen them (the documents) from the real Dr. Rifleman when he was working somewhere in Mexico."

Hutchison said the real Dr. Rifleman was then registered in Colorado.

"He (Trujillo) had placed his photograph on the documents belonging to Rifleman."

Based on the documents, Trujillo was granted temporary registration to practise and went to Alert Bay, "where there is a desperate need for doctors," Hutchison said.

Health care in Alert Bay has been the focus of public attention since an inquest last June into the death of 11-year-old native Indian Renee Smith.

"Over the last several weeks Dr. Jack Pickup (an Alert Bay doctor) expressed concern as to the competency of this individual and a few nurses at the hospital did, too," Hutchison said. "He (Trujillo) wasn't very busy up there. He saw few patients."

Hutchison said he had no idea why Trujillo impersonated Dr. Rifleman.

"It's possible for someone with limited knowledge of medicine to keep up a pretence for several months, but inevitably they'll get caught."

Hospital administrator Robert Wilkinson said the man arrived Nov. 9 and practised in an office at the hospital.

"But he was not working as a hospital employees or anything like that," Wilkinson said.

The man's wife said her husband had been practising as a general practitioner for Whatever happened to the beautiful fountain that used to be in the centre of the intersection at Douglas and Hillside?

City archivist Ainslie Helmcken says the original cast-iron fountain which decorated the centre of the intersection for more than 50 years now sits in Market Square in downtown Victoria.

It was given to the city in 1885 by Joseph Heywood and former mayor John Grant, who raised $1,200 for the fountain and a horse trough.

Teamsters driving wagons from the brickyards on north Douglas would halt to water their horses there, halfway to the docks at Rock Bay where the bricks were loaded aboard scows.

The fountain and trough stood in the intersection until 1937 when the city replaced them with a more modern concrete fountain to celebrate Victoria's 75th anniversary of incorporation as a city.

The newer fountain was removed in the early 1960s when the intersection was realigned to cope with the heavy traffic. At last report, archivist Helmcken says, it was still lying in the city's Garbally Road works yard.

The intersection itself has an interesting past. For many years it has been known as Humber Green, after pioneer brickmaker Maurice Humber whose kilns were nearby on Douglas.

He lived on Gorge Road near the intersection, and the century-old brick house at 610 Gorge Rd. East, which was the family home, is still standing.

And Timothy gets the perfect birthday gift

By PAT DUFOUR

Timothy Padmore turned eight today. He's celebrating his birthday at home but it could easily have been in the bush of East Sooke Park.

Timothy, along with his 10-year-old sister Joanna and a friend, Jason Wale, 8, were the object of a four-hour search Sunday by 60 volunteers after they went missing during a family hike.

The three were rescued by Bill Smith of Becher Bay Road, Sooke, who fell 20 feet down a cliff in the process, hit a tree, lost one tooth and loosened three others.

Joanna also fell down the cliff but her fall was stopped by a bush. She received a few cuts.

Timothy's parents, Eric and Frances Padmore, had taken the youngsters, plus their 13-year-old son James and two other friends, Ken and Vincent Cummings, on a hiking trip when the trio wandered away and became lost about 4 p.m in the Babbington Hill area.

"We couldn't find each other, it was very windy," Padmore said today.

He searched the area until it was dark. By this time the others had returned to the car and raised the alarm.

The RCMP organized a ground search with the 38-strong rescue team from the Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific as the main pivot, supplemented with volunteers from the Sooke area. Sadru Damji, college lecturer and team leader, said the RCMP asked them to take charge because they had carried out a night simulation search in the area about this time last year.

"Two students were purposely lost and they (the RCMP) knew we had the maps and complete data of the area," Damji said.

He said when Smith, who was accompanied by his two daughters, Heather and Lorna, and a neighbor, Mrs. Louise Patterson, found the missing youngsters about 8 p.m., the main search party was only five minutes away.

"As long as the kids are okay, that's what counts," he said. "They were very cool-headed kids. They didn't panic a bit."

Smith and his party set out at 7 p.m.

"We kept shouting every 100 yards and we found them about 8 p.m. They were in perfect shape. They're real good kids," he said.

"They were found not very far from where we had been. They had enough sense to stay put," he said.

As for Timothy, he now appreciates even more one of the birthday presents he received today.

It was a compass.

Saanich bid still interests RCV: Francis

A claim by Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier that the Racquet Club of Victoria was no longer interested in a purchase offer from the municipality was strongly denied today by Don Francis, president of the company which holds the property and facilities on behalf of shareholders.

Couvelier said today he will recommend the matter be made public after an in-camera meeting tonight.

"I no longer see any valid reason to consider the matter (an offer by the municipality to assume the troubled club's $850,000 mortgage debt) in-camera. It is no longer in the public interest."

Couvelier said he wants the matter discussed in public because there is "an internal split" in the club and the public should now be made aware of Saanich's previous negotiations and study on acquiring the recreation facility on Gordon Head.

The split, he said, became obvious in a reorganization plan pamphlet recently published by some members of the club which said, "we do not want to sell the (facility) to Saanich in exchange for assumption of the mortgage or whatever else they offer."

But Francis, Racquet Club Holdings Ltd. president, said Saanich's offer is still active as far as he is concerned. He says the Racquet Club Society, which leases the building from the holding company, had asked for a deadline this Friday to raise the $200,000 it needs to make a purchase offer.

Francis doesn't think they can do it.

He said the board's executive will meet Feb. 5 to discuss three proposals and a recommendation will be placed before a shareholders' meeting on Feb. 19.

The Saanieh offer will be considered, the society's plan and a proposal from a private developer in Vancouver.

Biker's condition stable

A 20-year-old motorcyclist who hit a curb on Kimta Road Saturday afternoon and lost control of his machine is in stable condition in Victoria General Hospital.

Victoria police said Dennis William Hoyt, of Work Point Barracks, was knocked unconscious in the spill, and his motorcycle was extensively damaged.

Still in Victoria General is Kim Alexandra Murray, 11, of 855 Villance. She has been in critical condition since being struck by a van and thrown against the back of another van stopped in a line of traffic on Finlayson near Glasgow last Wednesday.

Grace's ministry 'hard-hearted' on Langwood

By NORMAN GIDNEY

The Langwood workshop for mentally handicapped adults will be forced to close at the end of March unless there is a shift in the policy of "a hard-hearted ministry of human resources."

Dr. George Stocker, chairman of the Capital Region Association for the Mentally Handicapped board of directors, said the association can no longer carry the deficit for the workshop at 2724 Jacklin, established in the early 1970s.

Twenty retarded adults will be forced to remain at home or will be returned to an institution. Now, they attend Langwood from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and work on the workshop's planter box program. There are also programs in "life skill" development.

"It is a great shame that mentally handicapped citizens and their families have to pay such a high price for the policies of a hardhearted ministry of human resources," said Stocker.

The deficit for Langwood this year will be $33,000 — too much of a drain on the slender resources of the association, which runs another workshop at the former Sentinel school, 3861 Cedar Hill Crossroad, and several group homes for the mentally hndicapped.

"Forcing mentally handicapped adults to remain at home all day places terrible pressure on families and means that the quality of service available for some handicapped people returns to what it was 20 years ago," he added.

"It is indeed a sad comment that a government that brags about its surplus millions can't afford to provide even minimum services for retarded citizens."

He said the association wrote in October asking for a meeting with McCarthy and again in December, but there was no answer to either letter.

Her department now contributes 73 cents per hour for training for the handicapped, or $4.38 per day. The association's complaint is that the formula is too rigid and doesn't take into account the differing degrees of physical and mental handicaps.

"We just can't handle it anymore," said Ralph Vipond, executive director of the association.

In an interview about Langwood and the association's financial problem, he said the directors and staff are fed up, frustrated and angry with the provincial government.

He noted that deputy human resources minister John Noble announced on Friday the new budget for the centre, but this was for the 1979-80 fiscal year. For 10 months the centre has had to exist on loans and what money it could generate on its own.

"It makes it impossible to plan, impossible to do anything," said Vipond.

Noble also said there would be no decision on Langwood until later this year, when the department budget had been reviewed again.

Vipond said for years the Sentinel workshop, which trains less handicapped adults, has carried the Langwood workshop. To continue would mean cutting the pay for the mentally handicapped who produce saleable items at Sentinel.

Hundreds left off the voters' list

Hundreds of local voters have been left off the list because of a lack of enumeration, federal election officials said today.

As a result, returning offices are twice as busy as they were last time.

The problem, said Victoria chief returning officer Eleanor Allan, is there was no time to do an enumeration this year and hundreds of addresses have been changed during the past eight months.

An enumeration had been done in April for the May federal election and there were few problems but the same April enumeration is the basis for the Feb. 18 election and many people have moved in the past eight months.

"I would say change of address accounts for 90 per cent of our revision work."

Voters have until Feb. 4 to get on the voters list in city areas and until Jan. 30 in rural zones. Rural polls have special provisions allowing people not on the list to vote on election day under a special declaration but there is no similar provision for city areas.

Those who are not sure if they are on the list should come in person to 1837 Fort for the Victoria riding, between 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. or between 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. The stations are open Monday to Saturday inclusive.

For Esquimalt-Saanich, the revisions are taking place during the same hours at the Esquimalt Rec Centre at 527 Fraser, Garth Homer Achievement Centre at 813 Darwin (for urban Saanich) and the Sanscha Hall for Sidney.

Anyone in rural polls in Central Saanich or North Saanich who is not on the list could phone 477-4911 for information on how to get registered.

In Cowichan-Malahat the urban centre for revisions of the voters list is at Langford Fire Hall at 2775 Millstream. It is open from 10 a.m. to 11 a.m. and from 7 p.m. til 9 p.m. on weekdays.

Rural poll revisions in Cowichan-Malahat are done through polling clerks. Information can be obtained by phoning the chief returning officer at 746-5722.

In Vancouver about 15,000 voters cards were sent back to Ottawa as undeliverable.

Most had wrong addresses due to the long delay between enumeration and election day.

Vancouver's main post office shipped a 45-kilogram fibreglass bin full of undeliverable voters cards back to Ottawa this week. The week before they sent back a 14-kilogram sack.

Since there are about 250 cards in a kilogram, this means at least 15,000 eligible voters were not correctly registered when the cards were mailed in mid-January.

The mix-up is a result of the sudden election call which followed the defeat of the Progressive Conservative's budget Dec. 13.

Boat people sponsors lacking

By BRENDA DALGLISH

flow of Indo-Chinese people into Victoria low down in the next onths because of a sponsors, says Stu idge of the Refugee Aid Centre.

About 180 refugees have come to Victoria, Beveridge said, and about the same number are still expected.

The aid centre at 417-620 View was organized last year to assist groups interested in sponsoring refugees. It's affliated with the Inter-Cultural Association of Greater Victoria.

In all, Victoria has 81 groups who have applied to sponsor boat people and about half have received the refugees.

Beveridge, who with Janis Kirker staffs the centre, said only one new sponsoring group has applied since Christmas.

Only two of the refugees who wanted to work — which includes the men, most of the women and the older children — have not been able to find jobs, he said. One of them is a young man who spent several years in a refugee camp and has no work experience.

"They want to get as many incomes as they can to help them get established in their new home," he said. "Women tend to work seven or eight hours a day at a job and then tend the home while the men work at a regular day job and then in the evening go to second job."

There have been no incidents of serious illnesses or disease, considered a possibility before they arrived, he said.

Only three groups have not carried through with their plans to sponsor refugees. Two backed out of their commitment for personal reasons and one was dissolved by the government for unknown reasons, Beveridge said.

Generally the refugee families consist of a two or three children. However, Beveridge said, some groups are sponsoring greater numbers of people, often extended families.

Beveridge said he hopes the sponsor groups, about 60 per cent of which are church-based, have gained solid experience at establishing refugees and will assist more.

"There are about 5,000 sponsoring groups in Canada and they're experienced at doing something very valuable. I hope we'll make use of that experience," he said.

Beveridge said there are more than a million people in the world who need settlement in a new home.

Canada is one of only 15 countries willing and able to provide resettlement, he said.

MERIT AWARD from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been made to (left to right) Kent Moss, John Walker and Trevor Moss who rescued young deer from icy waters of Langford Lake earlier this month. Boys saw a dog chase the deer onto the partially frozen lake and when it went through the ice, they set out in a rowboat and rescued it.

CHARMING PAINTER is this masked Buckeye International employee whose job it is to spray plastic automobile door panels as they move down the assembly line. The panels move along to an infra-red oven where they are dried without melting the plastic they are made from.

Dental plan tops with employees

TORONTO (CP) — Group dental insurance continues to be the fastest-growing employee benefit in Canada, as shown by a 1979 survey of group insurance benefits for non-union salaried employees in the private sector.

The survey, conducted by the Wyatt Co., a Toronto-based actuarial and employee benefit consultant firm, covered benefits available to 700,000 salaried employees in 410 companies in most business sectors. Wyatt conducted a similar, but smaller survey in 1976.

Consultant R. W. Noxon said that 59 per cent of the surveyed companies provide a dental insurance plan, compared with 22 per cent in the smaller 1976 sample.

And, he said, many companies which already have such a plan are considering expanding the plan's coverage.

He said more companies are considering plans offering automobile, life and residential insurance to their employees at preferred rates.
